The Mind of the Individual Beverly Cuffy, 2011-11-14 In early 2006 after a visit to Canada to visit my sisters I came back to England alert confident and able to once again reclaim my independence I didnt know but apparently it was common knowledge that a key to my house had been found Or at least that is what was claimed It had apparently been lost in the street I awoke one night I had not locked the bedroom door and there was a man standing in the room a candle in his hand He was standing about eight feet away just watching me I was terrified and realised I had to keep totally still He knew he had woken me though and said Im not going to hurt you go back to sleep My subconscious must have recognised the voice and trusted the person because I did go back to sleep Thereafter I ensured the bedroom door was locked This and other instances make me realise how vulnerable I was to rape abuse or being murdered in the house where I lived I later learned that the neighbours would enter my house either by climbing in through the window or using the key which they had found

Bowker Editorial Staff, Staff Bowker R R, Bowker, 1999-02 Redbrick William Hadden Whyte, 2015 In the last two centuries Britain has experienced a revolution in higher education with the number of students rising from a few hundred to several million Yet the institutions that drove and still drive this change have been all but ignored by historians Drawing on a decade s research and based on work in dozens of archives many of them used for the very first time this is the first full scale study of the civic universities new institutions in the nineteenth century reflecting the growth of major Victorian cities in Britain such as Liverpool Manchester Birmingham York and Durham for more than 50 years Tracing their story from the 1780s until the 2010s it is an ambitious attempt to write the Redbrick revolution back into history William Whyte argues that these institutions created a distinctive and influential conception of the university something that was embodied in their architecture and expressed in the lives of their students and staff It was this Redbrick model that would shape their successors founded in the twentieth century ensuring that the normal university experience in Britain is a Redbrick one Using a vast range of previously untapped sources Redbrick is not just a new history but a new sort of university history one that seeks to rescue the social and architectural aspects of education from the disregard of previous scholars and thus provide the richest possible account of university life It will be of interest to students and scholars of modern British history to anyone who has ever attended university and to all those who want to understand how our higher education system has developed and how it may evolve in the future

Translation and Censorship in Different Times and Landscapes Maria Lin Moniz,Teresa Seruya,2009-03-26 This volume is a selection of papers presented at the international conference on Translation and Censorship From the 18th Century to the Present Day held in Lisbon in November 2006 Although censorship in Spain under Franco dictatorship has already been thoroughly studied the Portuguese situation under Salazar and Caetano has been so far almost ignored by the academic research This is then an attempt to start filling this gap At the same time new case studies about the Spanish context are presented thus contributing to a critical view of two Iberian dictatorial regimes However other geographical and time contexts are also included former dictatorships such as Brazil and Communist Czechoslovakia present day countries with very strict censoring apparatus such as China or more subtle censorial mechanisms as Turkey and Ukraine Specific situations of past centuries are given some attention the reception of Ovid in Portugal the translation of English narrative fiction into Spanish in the 18th century the translation of children literature in Victorian England and the emergence of the picaresque novel in Portugal in the 19th century Other forms of censorship namely self censorship are studied in this volume as well The book fits in one of the most innovative fields of research in translation studies i e the study of social and political constraints on translation processes and translation functions More specifically the concept of censorship is crucial to the understanding of these constraints especially in spatio temporal settings where translation exhibits conflicts between what is acceptable for and what is prohibited by a given culture For that reason detailed descriptive research is needed in as many situations as possible It gives an excellent view on the complex mechanisms of censorship with regard to translation within a large number of modern European and non European cultures In addition to articles devoted to cases dealing with China Brazil Great Britain Turkey Ukraine or Czechoslovakia Spain and Portugal occupy a prominent role As a whole the volume marks an important step forward in our growing understanding of the role of socio political factors for the development and changes of translation policies I highly recommend the publication
