Hello, my name is [Name of Researcher] and I am a public high school teacher with the Department of Education and a doctoral candidate in the [Department & University]. As part of my doctoral dissertation, I am conducting a research study to understand how high school math teachers design classroom curricula. I am recruiting math teachers who have experience teaching algebra, geometry, calculus, and trigonometry to a diverse group of students.

Participation in the study will take approximately 60 minutes. If you would like to participate, I will ask that you:

1. Complete a brief Curriculum Assessment Survey (approximately 10 minutes).
2. Review and provide feedback on current math curricula for high school Algebra students (approximately 20 minutes).
3. Discuss your experiences with teaching high school math and designing curricula in an audio-recorded individual face-to-face interview (approximately 30 minutes).

Participation is voluntary and there are no consequences for choosing not to participate or withdrawing from the study. Confidentiality of all participants will be maintained. The data will be kept secure and password protected.

Any additional questions regarding the project can be directed to me, [Name of Researcher] at [Phone Number] or [Email]. Please email me if you're interested in participating in this study.
