Griffin,2003-10-08 Documents prehistoric human occupation along the lower reaches of the Mississippi River A Dan Josselyn Memorial Publication The Lower Mississippi Survey was initiated in 1939 as a joint undertaking of three institutions the School of Geology at Louisiana State University the Museum of Anthropology at the University of Michigan and the Peabody Museum at Harvard Fieldwork began in 1940 but was halted during the war years When fieldwork resumed in 1946 James Ford had joined the American Museum of Natural History which assumed co sponsorship from LSU The purpose of the Lower Mississippi Survey LMS a term used to identify both the fieldwork and the resultant volume was to investigate the northern two thirds of the alluvial valley of the lower Mississippi River roughly from the mouth of the Ohio River to Vicksburg This area covers about 350 miles and had been long regarded as one of the principal hot spots in eastern North American archaeology Phillips Ford and Griffin surveyed over 12 000 square miles identified 382 archaeological sites and analyzed over 350 000 potsherds in order to define ceramic typologies and establish a number of cultural periods The commitment of these scholars to developing a coherent understanding of the archaeology of the area as well as their mutual respect for one another enabled the publication of what is now commonly considered the bible of southeastern archaeology Originally published in 1951 as volume 25 of the Papers of the Peabody Museum of American Archaeology and Ethnology this work has been long out of print Because Stephen Williams served for 35 years as director of the LMS at Harvard succeeding Phillips and was closely associated with the authors during their lifetimes his new introduction offers a broad overview of the work s influence and value placing it in a contemporary context Building Learning Capacity in an Age of Uncertainty

Strategy and Grand Strategy Ionut C. Popescu, 2017-11-15 Ionut Popescu explores how successful American grand strategy comes about For most experts in the academic world of political science and in the Washington policymaking community the answer lies in the design and implementation of a farsighted strategic plan or framework The role of such a Grand Design is to guide the president s foreign policy actions and resource allocation decisions in the pursuit of specific long term objectives The alternative to following a Grand Design is usually said to consist of ad hoc incoherent and ultimately unsuccessful foreign policy decision making But what if successful grand strategies are sometimes formed through an emergent process of learning and adaptation instead of being the product of strategic planning and farsighted designs Popescu argues that the Emergent Strategy model adapted from the business strategy literature explains some of the traditional success stories and failures of American grand strategy better than the prevalent Grand Design model These findings suggest the need to shift the focus of policymakers away from planning for long term objectives and toward short and medium term incremental learning and adaptation Based on this new theoretical understanding of successful grand strategy being formed by either Design or Emergent elements depending on the circumstances the book also offers a framework to help policymakers and strategic planners choose the right model and tools based on the level of uncertainty they face in the external environment
