TOPIC: PRINCIPAL PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

PROBLEM STATEMENT

Principal leadership is correlated with student achievement, and there are significant links between specific principal behaviors and student achievement (Petersen et al., 2010; Tang et al., 2018). Researchers posit that "effective leadership means more than knowing what to do—it's knowing when, how, and why to do it" (Petersen et al., 2010, p. 2). However, there is limited research on the principal as a learner, specifically principal professional development, and its impact on principal leader effectiveness (Garcia, 2014).

Researchers can identify the types of professional development experiences that are most likely to build principals' capacity to be successful leaders, negative selection trends and stagnant student achievement may be reversed.

PURPOSE OF THE STUDY

The purpose of this study is to explore the perceptions of principals regarding their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts. The research will seek to identify the types of professional development experiences that are most likely to build principals' capacity to be successful leaders, negative selection trends and stagnant student achievement may be reversed.

RESEARCH QUESTIONS

1. How do principals perceive their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts?
2. What types of professional development experiences are most likely to build principals' capacity to be successful leaders?
3. How do principals perceive their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts?

POPULATION AND METHODOLOGY

The targeted population for this study is principals who are currently serving in the position. The study will use a survey to collect data on principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts. The study will use a survey to collect data on principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts.

SIGNIFICANCE

The findings of this study will be significant to educators, specifically the principal leadership community. The study will provide information on the types of professional development experiences that are most likely to build principals' capacity to be successful leaders, negative selection trends and stagnant student achievement may be reversed.
