Lunn, 2014-10-01 Although traditionally accepted by the church down through the centuries the longer ending of Mark's Gospel 16:9-20 has been relegated by modern scholarship to the status of a later appendage The arguments for such a view are chiefly based upon the witness of the two earliest complete manuscripts of Mark and upon matters of language and style This work shows that these primary grounds of argumentation are inadequate It is demonstrated that the church fathers knew the Markan ending from the very earliest days well over two centuries before the earliest extant manuscripts The quantity of unique terms in the ending is also seen to fall within the parameters exhibited by undisputed Markan passages Strong indications of Markan authorship are found in the presence of specific linguistic constructions a range of literary devices and the continuation of various themes prominent within the body of the Gospel Furthermore the writings of Luke show that the Gospel of Mark known to this author contained the ending Rather than being a later addition the evidence is interpreted in terms of a textual omission occurring at a later stage in transmission probably in Egypt during the second century Does Mark 16:9-20 Belong in the New Testament? David W. Hester, 2015-03-19 For almost fifty years much has been written concerning Mark 16:9-20 During the same time period evidence once counted against Mark 16:9-20 was shown to be otherwise In this study David W Hester surveys modern scholarship 1965-2011 surrounding the passage He examines the passage itself the external evidence with particular attention paid to the manuscripts and the patristics especially those of the second and third centuries and the internal evidence featuring details that are problematic as well as those that favor Markan authorship Finally a proposal concerning the origin of the passage is presented The first edition of Mark's Gospel ended at 16:8 resulting in the manuscript tradition that omits the passage but this was not his intended ending Later his associates attached Mark's notes and published a second edition of the Gospel with the last twelve verses This led to its inclusion Given that the passage is cited by second and third century witnesses and attributed to Mark along with the biblical prohibition against adding to or taking from Scripture it is doubtful that an anonymous second century author could have been successful in adding his own composition and it being widely accepted by the early church The Psalms of Lament in Mark's Passion Stephen P.
