Frank, 2006 In Frames of Evil The Holocaust as Horror in American Film Picart and Frank challenge this classic horror frame the narrative and visual borders used to demarcate monsters and the monstrous After examining the way in which directors and producers of the most influential American Holocaust movies default to this Gothic frame they propose that multiple frames are needed to account for evil and genocide Detecting Men Philippa Gates, 2012-02-01 Detecting Men examines the history of the Hollywood detective genre and the ways that detective films have negotiated changing social attitudes toward masculinity heroism law enforcement and justice Genre film can be a site for the expression and resolution of problematic social issues but while there have been many studies of such other male genres as war films gangster films and Westerns relatively little attention has been paid to detective films beyond film noir In this volume Philippa Gates examines classical films of the thirties and forties as well as recent examples of the genre including Die Hard the Lethal Weapon films The Usual Suspects Seven Devil in a Blue Dress and Murder by Numbers in order to explore social anxieties about masculinity and crime and Hollywood's conceptions of gender Up until the early 1990s Gates argues the primary focus of the detective genre was the masculinity of the hero However from the mid 1990s onward the genre has shifted to more technical portrayals of crime scene investigation forensic science and criminal profiling offering a reassuring image of law enforcement in the face of violent crime By investigating the evolution of the detective film Gates suggests perhaps we can detect the male Psycho Paths Philip L. Simpson, 2000 Philip L. Simpson provides an original and broad overview of the evolving serial killer genre in the two media most responsible for its popularity literature and cinema of the 1980s and 1990s The fictional serial killer with a motiveless highly individualized modus operandi is the latest manifestation of the multiple murderers and homicidal maniacs that haunt American literature and particularly visual media such as cinema and television Simpson theorizes that the serial killer genre results from a combination of earlier genre depictions of multiple murderers inherited Gothic storytelling conventions and threatening folkloric figures reworked over the years into a contemporary mythology of violence Updated and repackaged for mass consumption the Gothic villains the monsters the vampires and the werewolves of the past have evolved into the fictional serial killer who clearly reflects American cultural anxieties at the start of the twenty first century Citing numerous sources Simpson argues that serial killers recent popularity as genre monsters owes much to their pliability to any number of authorial ideological agendas from both the left and the right ends of the political spectrum Serial killers in fiction are a kind of debased and traumatized visionary whose murders privately and publicly re empower them with a pseudo divine aura in the contemporary political moment The current fascination with serial killer narratives can thus be explained as the latest manifestation of the ongoing human fascination with tales of gruesome murders and mythic villains finding a receptive audience in a nation galvanized by the increasingly apocalyptic tension between the extremist philosophies of both the New Right and the anti New Right Faced with a blizzard of works of varying quality dealing with the serial killer Simpson has ruled out the catalog approach in this study in favor of in depth an analysis of the best American work in the genre He has chosen novels and films that have at least some degree of public name recognition or notoriety including Red Dragon and The Silence of the Lambs by Thomas Harris Manhunter directed by Michael Mann Henry Portrait of a Serial Killer directed by John McNaughton Seven directed by David Fincher Natural Born Killers directed by Oliver Stone Zombie by Joyce Carol Oates and American Psycho by Bret Easton Ellis

After Hitchcock David Boyd, R. Barton Palmer, 2010-01-01 Alfred Hitchcock is arguably the most famous director to have ever made a film Almost single handedly he turned the suspense thriller into one of the most popular film genres of all time while his Psycho updated the horror film and inspired two generations of directors to imitate and adapt this most Hitchcockian of movies Yet while much scholarly and popular attention has focused on the director's oeuvre until now there has been no extensive study of how Alfred Hitchcock's films and methods have affected and transformed the history of the film medium In this book thirteen original essays by leading film scholars reveal the richness and variety of Alfred Hitchcock's legacy as they trace his shaping influence on particular films filmmakers genres and even on film criticism Some essays concentrate on films that imitate Hitchcock in diverse ways including the movies of Brian de Palma and thrillers such as True Lies The Silence of the Lambs and Dead Again Other essays look at genres that have been influenced by Hitchcock's work including the 1970s paranoid thriller the Italian giallo film and the post Psycho horror film The remaining essays investigate developments within film culture and academic film study including the enthusiasm of French New Wave filmmakers for Hitchcock's work his influence on the filmic representation of violence in the post studio Hollywood era and the ways in which his films have become central texts for film theorists killing Dissecting Hannibal Lecter Benjamin Szumskyj, 2008-01-22 This comprehensive study of author Thomas Harris popular works focuses particularly on Harris's internationally known antihero Hannibal The Cannibal Lecter in the classic novels Red Dragon, Silence of the Lambs and Hannibal. In 12 scholarly essays the work examines several themes within Harris' trilogy including the author's artistic exploration of repressed desires, his refinement of neo noir themes and the serial killer motif and his developing perceptions of feminine gender roles. Several essays also focus on Harris' works before and after the popular trilogy examining themes such as gothic romance in Harris's first novel Black Sunday and the making of a monster in the trilogy's 2006 prequel Hannibal Rising. Crowds, Power, and Transformation in Cinema Lesley Brill, 2006 A noted critic brings crowd theory to Film Studies offering a bold new analysis of the pervasive cinematic themes of transformation and power. From Intolerance to The Silence of the Lambs, motion pictures show crowds and power in complex, usually antagonistic relationships. Key to understanding this opposition is an intrinsic capability of the cinema: transformation. Making unprecedented use of Elias Canetti's Crowds and Power, Lesley Brill explores crowds, power, and transformation throughout film history. The formation of crowds together with crowd symbols and representations of power create complex unifying structures in two early masterpieces: The Battleship Potemkin and Intolerance. In Throne of Blood, power seekers become increasingly isolated while the crowd of the dead seduces and overwhelms the living. The conflict between crowds and power in Citizen Kane takes place both within the protagonist and between him and the people he tries to master. North by Northwest, Killer of Sheep, and The Silence of the Lambs are rich in hunting and predation and show the crowd as a pack. Transformation, true, false, and failed, is the key to both attack and escape. Brill's study provides original insights into canonical movies and shows anew the central importance of transformation in film. Film theorists, critics, and historians will value this fresh and intriguing approach to film classics which also has much to say about cinema itself and its unique relationship to mass audiences. New York Magazine, 1991-05-06 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country.
