The Strange Adventure of Mr. Andrew Hawthorn John Buchan, 2011      The Strange Adventures of Mr Andrew Hawthorn & Other Stories John Buchan, 2009-01-29 In The Strange Adventures of Mr Andrew Hawthorn and the other stories in this collection peculiar worlds of temptation adventure or iniquity are perilously close at hand Mr Hawthorn himself steps outside to allow his porridge to cool and disappears for five years and more a Glasgow grocer is shipwrecked and ultimately worshipped as a god a young mathematician discovers an entirely new aspect of reality and becomes terrified by what he finds there and an ageing sinner clings grimly weakly to a hard won life of decency John Buchan in each demonstrating his abilities as a gripping writer of short stories In his introduction Giles Foden explores Buchan's innate sense of the fascination held by sudden jeopardy and vanished comfort and the themes of the will and fate in his work

The Strange Adventure of Mr. Andrew Hawthorn John Buchan, 2020-07-16 Any disappearance is a romantic thing especially if it be unexpected and inexplicable To vanish from the common world and leave no trace and to return with the same suddenness and mystery satisfies the eternal human sense of wonder That is why the old stories make so much of it Tamlane and Kilmeny and Ogier the Dane retired to Fairyland and Oisín to the Land of the Ever Living and no man knows the manner of their going or their return The common world goes on but they are far away in a magic universe of their own But even ordinary folk can disappear Sometimes they never come back and leave only blank mystery behind them But sometimes they return and can explain what happened Here is a true tale of what befell a most prosaic Scots gentleman rather less than two centuries ago Let us call him Andrew Hawthorn He was thirty two years of age and had no wife but lived with his sister Barbara in a steep roofed stone house a dozen miles from Edinburgh The house stood above a narrow wooded glen what is called in Scotland a dean at the bottom of which ran a brawling stream Mr Hawthorn was a stiff gentleman very set in his ways His wig was always carefully powdered his clothes were trim and his buckles bright He enjoyed a modest competence which enabled him to devote his life to his hobbies These were principally antiquities and he had been busy for some years on a great work on the Antonines He was in the habit of breakfasting at seven with his sister and being particular in his habits he liked to have his meal served punctually at that hour He was always in the little dining room as the clock struck while his sister was usually a few minutes late His custom was to take a walk after breakfast and be at his books at eight o'clock Therefore he liked to finish his meal by a quarter after seven and this meant punctilious service In especial he disliked having his porridge so hot that he had to delay some minutes before he could begin on it On a fine May morning Mr Hawthorn appeared in the breakfast room at the exact hour His sister was not down but two steaming bowls of porridge stood on the table Mr Hawthorn was annoyed He strode into the little hall and shouted upstairs Babbie he cried how often have I told you the porridge should be dished up earlier They are scalding hot again I am going out of doors until they cool He walked out into the garden He also walked out of the world for five years and seven months      Literature and Modern Time Trish
