"Read You Loud and Clear!" Sunny Tsiao, 2008. From the Dust Jacket. Regardless of how sophisticated it may be, no spacecraft is of any value unless it can be tracked accurately to determine where it is and how it is performing. At the height of the space race, 6,000 men and women operated NASA's Spaceflight Tracking and Data Network at some two dozen locations across five continents. This network, known as the STDN, began its operation by tracking Sputnik 1, the world's first artificial satellite that was launched into space by the former Soviet Union. Over the next 40 years, the network was destined to play a crucial role on every near-Earth space mission that NASA flew. Whether it was receiving the first television images from space, tracking Apollo astronauts to the Moon and back, or data acquiring for Earth science, the STDN was that intricate network behind the scenes making the missions possible. Some called it the Invisible Network, a hallmark of which was that no NASA mission has ever been compromised due to a network failure. Read You Loud and Clear is a historical account of the STDN, starting with its formation in the late 1950s to what it is today in the first decade of the twenty-first century. It traces the roots of the tracking network from its beginnings at the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico to the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite System (TDRSS) space-based constellation of today. The story spans the early days of satellite tracking using the Minitrack Network through the expansion of the Satellite Tracking and Data Acquisition Network (STADAN) and the Manned Space Flight Network (MSFN) and finally to the Space and Ground Networks of today. Written from a nontechnical perspective, the author has translated a highly technical subject into historical accounts told within the framework of the U.S. space program. These accounts tell how international goodwill and foreign cooperation were crucial to the operation of the network and why the space agency chose to build the STDN the way it did. More than anything else, the story of NASA's STDN is about the unsung heroes of the space program.

francophone Europe      Polar Research ,1983      Mutiny and Its Bounty Patrick J. Murphy, Ray W. Coye, 2013-03-19 Parallels mutinies in today's business organizations with the shipboard rebellions of old 15 000 first printing      From John Cabot to Henry Hudson James F. Hancock, 2025-04-11 The history of how North Atlantic America was revealed to the Europeans in the 16th and early 17th centuries is largely forgotten This book seeks to remedy that describing the English French and Dutch expeditions to North America before the Pilgrims arrived at Plymouth Rock Drawing extensively on firsthand accounts of explorers this history spans the precolonial period from John Cabot's discovery of Newfoundland in 1497 to the founding of Jamestown in 1607 The French and English expeditions into the North Atlantic searching for cod gold and a route to China came first followed by Jacques Cartier's and other French fur trading activities in the St Lawrence River Valley and then a series of French and English expeditions along the New England coast in pursuit of cod and furs The pre colonial period would end after Henry Hudson's exploits in New York Harbor and Hudson Bay Central to the story of European discovery was their contacts with the dense populations of Indigenous people and the effect their presence had on tribal cultures What generally began as friendly interactions almost always turned ugly as the Europeans pushed for land and their diseases raced through the native people This exhaustively researched book presents many such events from an understudied period of European exploration
