Transformation I don't care what they think was my favorite line to say. Rebellious, prideful and determined to control every situation and event in my life, I left my father's house at the age of seventeen to attend college, brokenhearted, angry and full of rage. You see, my childhood was one of abuse, incest, domestic violence and an inner rage that would one day lead to suicide or homicide or both. The children in the families we grew up with were suffering the same torment, so I thought this was normal. To witness beatings, violence, pain and anguish was my norm. Silence was the pattern of behavior that was taught to me and my siblings. Don't let anybody know what was happening behind our four walls. These walls closed in around my heart and life in the years to come. After college, I joined the military. I was an adult now. I told myself as I began years of drinking and seducing whomever I chose. I was Navy, all the way, a man in every port and I don't care what they think. The next twenty-plus years would not be any better as I went from relationship to relationship looking for something, but what was I looking for? Why was my heart so hard and cold? Why did I keep doing the same things? Finally, the deep pain, despair and heartache along with a probable addiction to alcohol led to thoughts of suicide. Was this the answer I was seeking? If you have ever asked yourself these questions or if this story and struggle sounds vaguely familiar, then read this book to understand the answers I found in Jesus Christ. May this story be used to bring all glory to God and freedom for all who dare to read and be transformed.

Twelve Nights at Rotter House J.W. Ocker, 2019-10-29 Felix Allsey is a travel writer with a keen eye for the paranormal and he's carved out a unique, if only slightly lucrative, niche for himself in nonfiction. He writes travelogues of the country's most haunted places after haunting them himself. When he convinces the owner of the infamous Rotterdam Mansion to let him stay on the premises for 13 nights, he believes he's finally found the location that will bring him a bestseller. As with his other gigs, he sets rules for himself: no leaving the house for any reason, refrain from outside contact and sleep during the day. When Thomas Ruth, Felix's oldest friend and fellow horror film obsessive, joins him on the project, the two dance around a recent and unspeakably painful rough patch in their friendship but eventually fall into their old rhythms of dark humor and movie trivia. That's when things start going wrong: screams from upstairs, figures in the thresholds and more than what should be in any basement. Felix realizes the book he's writing and his very state of mind is tilting from nonfiction into all-out horror and the shocking climax answers a question that's been staring these men in the face all along: In Rotter House, who's haunting who?
