

A tall, weathered standing stone, known as the Stone of Scone, stands prominently in a lush green field. The stone is covered in moss and lichen, showing its age. In the background, there are rolling green hills and a line of trees under a bright blue sky with scattered white clouds. The overall scene is peaceful and natural.

In this first person tale of archaeological adventure in the tropical forest Jeffrey Quilter tells the story of his excavation of Rivas a great ceremonial center at the foot of the Talamanca Mountain range which flourished between A.D. 900 and 1300 and its fabled gold filled cemetery the Pante n de La Reina Beginning with the 1992 field season and ending with the last excavations in 1998 Quilter discusses Rivas builders and users theories on chiefdom societies and the daily interactions and surprises of modern archaeological fieldwork Writing in the first person with a balance between informal language and academic theory Quilter concludes that Rivas was a ceremonial center for mortuary rituals to bury chiefly elite on the Pante n Through use of his narrative technique he provides the reader with accounts of discoveries as they occurred in fieldwork and the development of interpretations to explain the ancient refuse and cobble architecture his team uncovered As his story progresses amid the enchantment of the Costa Rican landscape research plans are adjusted and sometimes completely overturned as new discoveries often serendipitous ones are made Such changing circumstances lead to new insights into the rise and fall of the people who built the cobble circles and raised the standing stones at Rivas a thousand years ago The only book in English that focuses on a single archaeological site in Costa Rica which continues to develop as a destination for archaeological tourism Cobble Stones and Standing Circles will appeal to laypeople and professionals alike The Last Druid Standing Dr. Larry S.
