The Sun Shines After The Clouds Have Blown Away:

The Sun Shines After the Clouds Have Blown Away Beverly Ann Carinus, 2014-10-30 Beverly Carinus together with her husband Steve Pilkington Williams write an amusing and unusual glimpse into living with and coping with Steve's inoperable brain tumour. This book is not about the tragedy of the tumour; rather, it's about the fight and survival for life and love and shared laughter. It's a love story about two people whose lives ran in parallel lines, each seeking that someone who was missing from their lives. Yet once they had experienced the joy of finding each other, fate threw a tragic twist their way. In 2004, Steve was moving from Dubai to start a new and exciting phase of his life in Singapore and asked Bev to join him. A few months later, he fell ill and was diagnosed with an inoperable left-based glomus brain stem tumour. This story is about their love, Steve's tumour, and his determination to live. They were starting their life together and turned what should have been an ending into an exciting new beginning. Steve and Beverly were together in a strange country and coping with issues that most couples don't have to deal with in a lifetime. It only made their love stronger. Together, they bring to life a multitude of wonderful characters and give intimate glimpses into the lives of people around them. They both write straight from the heart. Steve contributes frankly on what it is like to live and cope with a tumour and all the surrounding issues. Steve and Beverly continue to live in Singapore where they have established www.rebuildconfidence.com to bring awareness to the plight of children in Asia.

One Korean's Approach to Buddhism Sung Bae Park, 2009-01-29 This book presents the author's lifelong study and practice of Buddhism from a Korean perspective. With depth, sensitivity, and candor, Sung Bae Park discusses his country's contribution to Mahayana Buddhism and also shares his personal experience. A monk in the Korean Chogye order during his early twenties, Park is uniquely qualified to offer the reader some valuable insights into the experience and philosophy of the Zen Buddhist. Focusing on the Korean concepts mom which refers to the body and momjit which refers to its gestures or functions, Park examines their nondual interdependent nature and their relevance to ordinary human beings who are living in these turbulent times. He also introduces a specialized spiritual practice using the hwadu which aids the religious practitioner in loosening his conceptual intellectual grip on his life and the world around him. In addition, the author explores the relevance of his views to other religions and philosophies including Taoism, Confucianism, and Christianity. Those well acquainted with Buddhism will find much food for thought here as familiar topics such as emptiness, nonduality, and enlightenment are presented in a refreshingly original way, and those new to Buddhist thought may find themselves stimulated to learn more. A helpful glossary of terms is included.

Only the Heart Brian Caswell, David Phu An Chiem, 2015-09-01 From the chaos and the fear of post-war Saigon and the terror of pirates on the open ocean to the triumph and tragedy of a new life, Only The Heart is the story of Toan and Linh and a family that endures the nightmare in search of the dream. When logic says the dream is beyond your reach, only heart knows the truth.

Floral Biology David G.

Lloyd, Spencer C.H. Barrett, 2012-12-06 Studies in floral biology are largely concerned with how flowers function to promote pollination and mating The role of pollination in governing mating patterns in plant populations inextricably links the evolution of pollination and mating systems Despite the close functional link between pollination and mating research conducted for most of this century on these two fundamental aspects of plant reproduction has taken quite separate courses This has resulted in surprisingly little cross fertilization between the fields of pollination biology on the one hand and plant mating system studies on the other The separation of the two areas has largely resulted from the different backgrounds and approaches adopted by workers in these fields Most pollination studies have been ecological in nature with a strong emphasis on field research and until recently few workers considered how the mechanics of pollen dispersal might influence mating patterns and individual plant fitness In contrast work on plant mating patterns has often been conducted in an ecological vacuum largely devoid of information on the environmental and demographic context in which mating occurs Mating system research has been dominated by population genetic and theoretical perspectives with surprisingly little consideration given to the proximate ecological factors responsible for causing a particular pattern of mating to occur
