California roll Chinese take out American made kimchi dogmeat monosodium glutamate SPAM all are examples of what Robert Ji Song Ku calls dubious foods Strongly associated with Asian and Asian American gastronomy they are commonly understood as ersatz depraved or simply bad In Dubious Gastronomy Ku contends that these foods share a spiritual fellowship with Asians in the United States in that the Asian presence be it culinary or corporeal is often considered watered down counterfeit or debased manifestations of the real thing The American expression of Asianness is defined as doubly inauthentic as insufficiently Asian and unreliably American when measured against a largely ideological if not entirely political standard of authentic Asia and America By exploring the other side of what is prescriptively understood as proper Asian gastronomy Ku suggests that Asian cultural expressions occurring in places such as Los Angeles Honolulu New York City and even Baton Rouge are no less critical to understanding the meaning of Asian food and by extension Asian people than culinary expressions that took place in Tokyo Seoul and Shanghai centuries ago In critically considering the impure and hybridized with serious and often whimsical intent Dubious Gastronomy argues that while the notion of cultural authenticity is troubled troubling and troublesome the apocryphal is not necessarily a bad thing The dubious can be and is often quite delicious Dubious Gastronomy overlaps a number of disciplines including American and Asian American studies Asian diasporic studies literary and cultural studies and the burgeoning field of food studies More importantly however the book fulfills the critical task of amalgamating these areas and putting them in conversation with one another Written in an engaging and fluid style it promises to appeal a wide audience of readers who seriously enjoys eating and reading and thinking about food The Tragedy of the Commodity Stefano B. Longo,Rebecca Clausen,Brett Clark,2015-06-25 Winner of the 2017 Paul Sweezy Marxist Sociology Book Award from the American Sociological Association Although humans have long depended on oceans and aquatic ecosystems for sustenance and trade only recently has human influence on these resources dramatically increased transforming and undermining oceanic environments throughout the world Marine ecosystems are in a crisis that is global in scope rapid in pace and colossal in scale In The Tragedy of the Commodity sociologists Stefano B Longo Rebecca Clausen and Brett Clark explore the role human influence plays in this crisis highlighting the social and economic forces that are at the heart of this looming ecological problem In a critique of the classic theory the tragedy of the commons by ecologist Garrett Hardin the authors move beyond simplistic explanations such as unrestrained self interest or population growth to argue that it is the commodification of aquatic resources that leads to the depletion of fisheries and the development of environmentally suspect means of aquaculture To illustrate this argument the book features two fascinating case studies the thousand year history of the bluefin tuna fishery in the Mediterranean and the massive Pacific salmon fishery Longo Clausen and Clark describe how new fishing technologies transformations in ships and storage capacities and the expansion of seafood markets combined to alter radically and permanently these crucial ecosystems In doing so the authors underscore how the particular organization of social production contributes to ecological degradation and an increase in the pressures placed upon the ocean The authors highlight the historical political economic and cultural forces that shape how we interact with the larger biophysical world A path breaking analysis of overfishing The Tragedy of the Commodity yields insight into issues such as deforestation biodiversity loss pollution and climate change Tasting
