Indeed, it is safe to say that more millions in the modern world are acquainted with the story of the rise of Abraham Lincoln from a poorly built log cabin to the highest place among the seats of the mighty than are familiar with the Bible story of Joseph who arose and stood next to the throne of the Pharaohs. Nearly every year, especially since the Lincoln Centennial 1909, something new has been added to the universal knowledge of one of the greatest, if not the greatest man who ever lived his life in the world. Not only those who knew Lincoln but many who only saw him once or shook hands with him have been called upon to tell what they saw him do or heard him say. So hearty was his kindness toward everybody that the most casual remark of his seems to be charged with deep human affection, the touch of Nature which has made the whole world kin to him. He knew just how to sympathize with every one. The people felt this.

without knowing why and recognized it in every deed or word or touch so that those who have once felt the grasp of his great warm hand seem to have been drawn into the strong circuit of Lincoln fellowship and were enabled as if by the laying on of hands to speak of him ever after with a deep and tender feeling There are many such people who did not rush into print with their observations and experiences Their Lincoln memories seemed too sacred to scatter far and wide Some of them have yielded with real reluctance in relating all for publication in The Story of Young Abraham Lincoln only because they wished their recollections to benefit the rising generation Several of these modest folk have shed true light on important phases and events in Lincoln's life history For instance there has been much discussion concerning Lincoln's Gettysburg Address where was it written and did he deliver it from notes Now fifty years after that great occasion comes a distinguished college professor who unconsciously settles the whole dispute whether Lincoln held his notes in his right hand or his left if he used them at all while making his immortal little speech To a group of veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic he related casually what he saw while a college student at Gettysburg after working his way through the crowd of fifteen thousand people to the front of the platform on that memorable day From this point of vantage he saw and heard everything and there is no gainsaying the vivid memories of his first impressions how the President held the little pages in both hands straight down before him swinging his tall form to right to left and to the front again as he emphasized the now familiar closing words of the people by the people for the people shall not perish from the earth Wayne Whipple Abraham Lincoln and the Forge of National Memory Barry Schwartz, 2000 Abraham Lincoln has long dominated the pantheon of American presidents From his lavish memorial in Washington and immortalization on Mount Rushmore one might assume he was a national hero rather than a controversial president who came close to losing his 1864 bid for reelection In Abraham Lincoln and the Forge of National Memory Barry Schwartz aims at these contradictions in his study of Lincoln's reputation from the president's death through the industrial revolution to his apotheosis during the Progressive Era and First World War Schwartz draws on a wide array of materials painting and sculpture popular magazines and school textbooks newspapers and oratory to examine the role that Lincoln's memory has played in American life He explains for example how dramatic funeral rites elevated Lincoln's reputation even while funeral eulogists questioned his presidential actions and how his reputation diminished and grew over the next four decades Schwartz links transformations of Lincoln's image to changes in the society Commemorating Lincoln helped Americans to think about their country's development from a rural republic to an industrial democracy and to articulate the way economic and political reform military power ethnic and race relations and nationalism enhanced their conception of themselves as one people Lincoln's memory assumed a double aspect of mirror and lamp acting at once as a reflection of the nation's concerns and an illumination of its ideals and Schwartz offers a fascinating view of these two functions as they were realized in the commemorative symbols of an ever widening circle of ethnic religious political and regional communities The first part of a study that will continue through the present Abraham Lincoln and the Forge of
