Our Mothers, Our Powers, Our Texts Teresa N. Washington, 2005-06-27 Washington writes supple and thoughtful prose and creatively integrates African and African derived terminology which never distract the reader I consider Our Mothers Our Powers Our Texts not only a brilliant study but also a model to be emulated Ouseyounou B Traore William Patterson University j is a Yoruba word that signifies a spiritual power of vast potential as well as the human beings who exercise that power Although both men and women can have j its owners and controllers are women the literal and cosmic Mothers who are revered as the gods of society Because of its association with female power its invisibility and profundity j is often misconstrued as witchcraft However as Teresa N Washington points out in Our Mothers Our Powers Our Texts j is central to the Yoruba ethos and cosmology Not only does it underpin the concepts of creation and creativity but as a force of justice and retribution j is essential to social harmony and balance As Africans were forced into exile and enslavement they took j with them and continued its work of creating destroying harming and healing in the New World Washington seeks out j s subversive power of creation and re creation in a diverse range of Africana texts from both men and women from both oral and contemporary literature and across space and time She guides readers to an understanding of the symbolic methodological and spiritual issues that are central to important works by Africana writers but are rarely elucidated by Western criticism She begins with an examination of the ancient forms of j in Yoruba culture which creates a framework for innovative readings of important works by Africana writers including Zora Neale Hurston Toni Morrison Ben Okri Wole Soyinka Jamaica Kincaid and Ntozake Shange This rich analysis will appeal to readers of Africana literature African religion and philosophy feminist studies and comparative literature

Contemporary African American Fiction Robert Butler, 1998 The book argues that from its very beginnings African American journey narratives are distinctively non teleological that is they typically resist being directed toward an end point in a particular place and instead exult in movement through indefinite space They view movement as intrinsically valuable a process of endless becoming rather than a carefully mapped journey resulting in a completed state of being rooted in a fixed place As such these journeys are a compelling metaphor of the American desire for the new life consisting of unlimited personal development The writers examined in this book offer a unique set of variations on this kind of open journey      The Bloomsbury Handbook to Octavia E. new depth and complexity to the genre by engaging with feminist theories and politics This book maps the intersection of feminism and science fiction through close readings of science fiction literature by Octavia E Butler Richard Calder and Melissa Scott and the movies The Matrix and the Alien series Patricia Melzer analyzes how these authors and films represent debates and concepts in three areas of feminist thought identity and difference feminist critiques of science and technology and the relationship among gender identity body and desire including the new gender politics of queer desires transgender and intersexed bodies and identities She demonstrates that key political elements shape these debates including global capitalism and exploitative class relations within a growing international system the impact of computer industrial and medical technologies on women's lives and reproductive rights and posthuman embodiment as expressed through biotechnologies the body machine interface and the commodification of desire Melzer's investigation makes it clear that feminist writings and readings of science fiction are part of a feminist critique of existing power relations and that the alien constructions cyborgs clones androids aliens and hybrids that populate postmodern science fiction are as potentially empowering as they are threatening
