Overview

A Piece of Wood—or a Family's Soul?

Blues musician Ray Miller drives to Pittsburgh in 1936 to scrape together the money to buy his own home in Mississippi, where his parents told him to sell the family piano for money. His sister Berniece objects, then argues that selling the piano would be selling the family's soul.

Means to an End

Ray Miller needs the piano only as a source of cash for the small fee—cows.

Family Legacy

Generations of the Charles family have suffered and died for the piano.

Worth Fighting For

Flamboyant protection of their heritage, Berniece will not let go of the piano.

August Wilson's Fences Ladrica Menson-Furr, 2013-06-06 Fences represents the decade of the 1950s and when it premiered in 1985 it won the Pulitzer Prize. Set during the beginnings of the civil rights movement, it also concerns generational change and renewal, ending with a celebration of the life of its protagonist even though it takes place at his funeral. Critics and scholars have lauded August Wilson's work for its universality and its ability, especially in Fences, to transcend racial barriers, and this play helped to earn him the titles of America's greatest playwright and the African American Shakespeare.
