Urban Education Karen Symms Gallagher, Rodney Goodyear, Dominic Brewer, Robert Rueda, 2013-03-19 Many factors complicate the education of urban students Among them have been issues related to population density racial ethnic cultural and linguistic diversity poverty racism individual and institutional and funding levels Although urban educators have been addressing these issues for decades placing them under the umbrella of urban education and treating them as a specific area of practice and inquiry is relatively recent Despite the wide adoption of the term a consensus about its meaning exists at only the broadest of levels In short urban education remains an ill defined concept This comprehensive volume addresses this definitional challenge and provides a 3 part conceptual model in which the achievement of equity for all regardless of race gender or ethnicity is an ideal that is central to urban education The model also posits that effective urban education requires attention to the three central issues that confronts all education systems a accountability of individuals and the institutions in which they work b leadership which occurs in multiple ways and at multiple levels and c learning which is the raison d tre of education Just as a three legged stool would fall if any one leg were weak or missing each of these areas is essential to effective urban education and affects the others Individual

Differences in Children and Adolescents Donald H. Saklofske, Sybil B. G. Eysenck, This uniquely authoritative collection of original papers with contributions from over twenty countries provides a rare insight into research and applied programs in the study of individual differences in children and adolescents worldwide While delinquency proves to be one of the most common areas of interest a wide range of cognitive personality and social characteristics are examined and the use of the Eysenck Personality Questionnaire in many studies allows uniform comparisons to be made between countries The editors have not only overcome the language barriers which hitherto have made such information virtually inaccessible to the English speaking world They have also succeeded in bringing together studies from developed and developing countries East and West to present a global picture of adolescent and child psychology In particular the book highlights the general and specific cultural influences on child development and adolescent psychology in different countries and reflects the social and research concerns of the countries and cultures represented The authors comprise a cross section of professionals in the social and behavioral sciences working in university and clinical settings While North America is well represented by six chapters including Puerto Rico as is Europe particular efforts were made to obtain contributions from Eastern Europe Asia and Africa At the time this book was developed information exchange with eastern European countries was most difficult It is very exciting to present chapters from Hungary Lithuania Romania Russia and Yugoslavia The inclusion of articles from Japan Korea Singapore Sri landa and Uganda also add another dimension to studies of individual differences in children Contributions from Australia Israel and New Zealand also allow the book to take on much more of an international perspective on topics ranging from delinquency fears and motivation to intelligence personality and assessment issues This volume provides a plethora of international perspectives on the study of children It will be essential to sociologists psychologists educators and child study specialists Recreational and Environmental Markets for Forest Enterprises

,2001 It is now increasingly recognized that forests have multiple functions and can provide opportunities for leisure recreation and tourism and other environmental benefits as well as timber In general such public goods are assumed not to be marketable However this book challenges this assumption and shows how these issues can be tackled from an economics and marketing perspective The work is based on an EU funded project conducted from four university or research centres Hamburg Germany Padua Italy Vienna Austria and Wageningen The Netherlands Many case studies and original surveys are presented from these countries which provide practical solutions to market these forest enterprises These empirical data are then related to economic models concerning public goods This book is relevant to those studying or involved in marketing in the forest tourism recreation and leisure industries
