Dear Editor,

I boarded the bus at 8:00 p.m. There were already about 16 passengers inside the bus. The driver closed the doors, switched off the air conditioner and went off to talk to someone outside the bus. I knocked on the door to ask the driver to switch on the air conditioner. The driver came over, opened the door and angrily shouted at me to get out. He also ordered all the other passengers to get out.

Is this the way to treat the public?

Secondary School External Examination Systems Barend Vlaardingerbroek, Neil Taylor, 2009 Summative assessment has been a contentious issue in educational circles for several decades particularly high stakes assessment events which arise at various junctures of the school cycle especially those at the end of it The French Baccalaureat and English A Levels and their numerous clones throughout the francophone and anglophone worlds are household names and represent milestone events in people s lives as their outcomes are principal determinants of young people s future prospects These examinations are external they are devised conducted and processed by agencies outside the schools usually ministerial examination units As such they act as blind arbiters of student achievement providing the proverbial level playing field which ensures the comparability of outcomes In the pyramidal school structures of yesteryear examinations acted as filters regulating the progression of pupils to subsequent tiers of formal education Exit points occurred from primary school level up from where unsuccessful candidates could enter the labour force and or embark on occupationally specific further education and training With the modernisation of the labour market and an ever higher social demand for access to higher levels of formal education the filtering function of examinations at lower levels of schooling has been gradually eroded while burgeoning numbers of students at the upper secondary level have brought about reforms that include curricular diversification and sometimes radical overhauls of terminating assessment systems including the modification and in some instances abandonment of external examinations This edited volume brings together the experiences of twenty examination systems from around the world to show how these dynamic entities have adapted over time to the changing context of schooling Following an introduction by Stephen P Heyneman of World Bank repute there are sixteen chapters presenting Country Case Studies which have been written up under common subheadings thereby highlighting the comparative nature of the work and facilitating cross referencing The subsequent four chapters elaborate on the theme of external examinations beyond national borders including a contribution by the International Baccalaureate Organisation A defining feature of the work is the attention it pays to what it calls the nuts and bolts of external examinations from question setting to grading procedures. These are it is argued instrumental in nurturing and maintaining public confidence in external examinations. The book will be of immense value to people involved in educational policy studies especially strategic educational planning as well as those directly concerned with formal assessment. The work has been written to appeal to a wide audience of informed persons it is accessible to teachers and interested laypeople as well as to academics.

Articles in this Classic Papers volume are rewritten, up-dated and extended versions of papers published in previous volumes of Advances in Botanical Research, chosen because of the high citation of the original papers and the increase of knowledge in the field today. Boulter and Croy discuss the structure and biosynthesis of legume seed storage proteins, an area that has been revolutionized in recent years by advances in 3-D structural analysis and methods of gene manipulation. Raven writes about the significant progress made in our understanding of the biochemistry of inorganic carbon acquisition by marine autotrophs and places this new information in evolutionary and biogeochemical contexts. Advances in biochemistry have also made impact on research into cyanotoxins. Carmichael considers the expansion of cyanotoxin research in the light of the negative impact of these toxins on water quality and aquaculture industries. The structure and regulation of algal photosystems are discussed by Larkum and Howe. They write about the diversity of algal photochemical apparatus and light harvesting strategy which has only been appreciated with the use of molecular genetic approaches. Finally, Kunze, Saedler and Loonig review advances in the field of plant transposable elements and the mechanism of transposition. They cover the role of transposable elements in evolution and their use as molecular tools, the importance of which has only been speculated on in the original paper in 1986.
