1. What is the purpose of a contract?
A contract is a legally binding agreement between two or more parties that outlines the terms and conditions of their relationship. Its purpose is to ensure that all parties understand their obligations and rights, and to provide a framework for resolving disputes.

2. What are the essential elements of a contract?
For a contract to be enforceable, it must contain several key elements: offer, acceptance, consideration, legal capacity, and legal purpose. Additionally, the terms of the contract must be clear and unambiguous.

3. How is a contract formed?
A contract is typically formed through a process of negotiation and agreement. One party makes an offer, and the other party accepts it, often in exchange for something of value (consideration). The agreement must be made with the intent to create a legal relationship.

4. What happens if a contract is breached?
If one party fails to fulfill their obligations under a contract (breach), the other party may seek legal remedies. These can include damages (monetary compensation), specific performance (forcing the breaching party to fulfill their obligations), or rescission (canceling the contract).

5. How can a contract be terminated?
A contract can be terminated in several ways: by mutual agreement of the parties, by the expiration of the contract term, by fulfillment of the contract's purpose, or by a court order if the contract is found to be illegal or void.
