Velegarakis,2022-06-01 Data usually comes in a plethora of formats and dimensions rendering the exploration and information extraction processes challenging Thus being able to perform exploratory analyses in the data with the intent of having an immediate glimpse on some of the data properties is becoming crucial Exploratory analyses should be simple enough to avoid complicate declarative languages such as SQL and mechanisms and at the same time retain the flexibility and expressiveness of such languages Recently we have witnessed a rediscovery of the so called example based methods in which the user or the analyst circumvents query languages by using examples as input An example is a representative of the intended results or in other words an item from the result set Example based methods exploit inherent characteristics of the data to infer the results that the user has in mind but may not be able to easily express They can be useful in cases where a user is looking for information in an unfamiliar dataset when the task is particularly challenging like finding duplicate items or simply when they are exploring the data In this book we present an excursus over the main methods for exploratory analysis with a particular focus on example based methods We show how that different data types require different techniques and present algorithms that are specifically designed for relational textual and graph data The book presents also the challenges and the new frontiers of machine learning in online settings which recently attracted the attention of the database community The lecture concludes with a vision for further research and applications in this area Fundamentals of Microsoft Fabric marked a stage in a two year research project at the U S National Center for Geographic Information and Analysis NCOIA In 1987 the U S National Science Foundation issued a solicitation for proposals to establish the NCGIA and one element of that solicitation was a call for research on a fundamental theory of spatial relations We felt that such a fundamental theory could be searched for in mathematics geometry topology or in cognitive science but that a simultaneous search in these two seemingly disparate research areas might produce novel results Thus as part of the NCGIA proposal from a consortium consisting of the University of California at Santa Barbara the State University of New York at Buffalo and the University of Maine we proposed that the second major Research Initiative two year multidisciplinary research project of the NCOIA would address these issues and would be called Languages of Spatial Relations The grant to establish the NCOIA was awarded to our consortium late in 1988
