Spirituality contains personal activity in order to figure out "personal meaning for life and is more personal and private, while religion refers to more general and social matters." Definitions of spiritual intelligence rely on the concept of spirituality as being distinct from religiosity.¹ There is one living and true God, the Father almighty, who is un-originated, independent, and eternal, the creator and supporter of all worlds; and that this God is one spiritual intelligence, one infinite mind, ever the same, never varying.² Spiritual intelligence can generally be associated with psychological health, although some forms of spirituality may be dysfunctional or pathogenic.³ Spiritual intelligence is concerned with the inner life of mind and spirit and its relationship to being in the world. Spiritual intelligence (SI) implies a capacity for a deep understanding of existential questions and insight into multiple levels of consciousness. Spiritual intelligence also implies awareness of spirit as the ground of being or as the creative life force of evolution. If the evolution of life from inanimate to mineral, vegetable, animal, and human existence implies some form of intelligence rather than being a purely random process, it might be called spiritual. Spiritual intelligence emerges as consciousness evolves into an ever-deepening awareness of matter, life, body, mind, soul, and spirit. Spiritual intelligence, then, is more than individual mental ability. It appears to connect the personal to the transpersonal and the self to spirit. Spiritual intelligence goes beyond conventional psychological development. In addition to self-awareness, it implies awareness of our relationships to the transcendent, to each other, to the earth and all beings.⁴ Spiritual intelligence is becoming more common in scientific inquiry and philosophical/psychological discussion. It is the central and most fundamental of all the intelligences because it becomes the source of guidance of the other three. Spiritual intelligence represents our drive for meaning and connection with the infinite. Spiritual intelligence also helps us discern true principles that are part of our conscience, and is symbolized by the compass. The compass is an excellent physical metaphor for principles, because it always points north.⁵ When the spiritual intelligence, which stands alone and freed from objects, reflects itself in the mind stuff, then comes awareness of the self.⁶

History must be so revised that while the Ultimate spiritual intelligence is not yet denied, yet any definite knowledge of it in historical terms must be carefully eliminated. They will admit that all religions have a final truth — viz., the existence of the spiritual.⁷ Spiritual intelligence and its Components in Islam: In Islamic authentic culture, special attention is paid to spiritual intelligence implicitly. Spiritual intelligence makes understanding deeper meaning of Quran verses, the prophet's words easier. In Quran those who enjoy from spiritual intelligence are called ulmas, because they can understand the essence of reality and go beyond imaginative borders. According to Islamic books, piety and abstinence are effective factors in spiritual intelligence. In addition, these features along with daily practices such as devising about creation, devising about the universe, praying, fasting, reciting Quran and truthful contrive in Quran verse improves spiritual intelligence.⁸ The
