Trumpet Jackie Kay, 2016-02-25 Winner of the Guardian Fiction Prize Trumpet by Jackie Kay is a starkly beautiful modern classic about the lengths to which people will go for love It is a moving story of a shared life founded on an intricate lie of loving deception and lasting devotion and of the intimate workings of the human heart With an introduction by author Ali Smith When the love of your life dies the problem is not that some part of you dies too which it does but that some part of you is still alive The death of legendary jazz trumpeter Joss Moody exposes an extraordinary secret Unbeknown to all but his wife Millie Joss was a woman living as a man The discovery is most devastating for their adopted son Colman whose bewildered fury brings the press to the doorstep and sends his grieving mother to the sanctuary of a remote Scottish village Kay carefully registers the technical difficulties of transgendered life She leaves us with a broad landscape of sweet tolerance and familial love New York Times Reading Contemporary Black British and African American Women Writers Jean

Wyatt, Sheldon George, 2020-01-28 Contemporary African American and Black British Women Writers Narrative Race Ethics brings together British and American scholars to explore how in texts by contemporary black women writers in the U S and Britain formal narrative techniques express new understandings of race or stimulate ethical thinking about race in a reader Taken together the essays also demonstrate that black women writers from both sides of the Atlantic borrow formal structures and literary techniques from one another to describe the workings of structural racism in the daily lives of black subjects and to provoke readers to think anew about race Narratology has only recently begun to use race as a category of narrative theory This collection seeks both to show the ethical effects of narrative form on individual readers and to foster reconceptualizations of narrative theory that account for the workings of race within literature and culture European
