The Gold Standard at the Turn of the Twentieth Century Steven Bryan, 2010 By the end of the nineteenth century the world was ready to adopt the gold standard out of concerns of national power prestige and anti English competition Yet although the gold standard allowed countries to enact a virtual single world currency the years before World War I were not a time of unfettered liberal economics and one world one market harmony Outside of Europe the gold standard became a tool for nationalists and protectionists primarily interested in growing domestic industry and imperial expansion This overlooked trend provocatively reassessed in Steven Bryan's well documented history contradicts our conception of the gold standard as a British based system infused with English ideas interests and institutions In countries like Japan and Argentina where nationalist concerns focused on infant industry protection and the growth of military power the gold standard enabled the expansion of trade and the goals of the age industry and empire Bryan argues that these countries looked less to Britain and more to North America and the rest of Europe for ideological models Not only does this history challenge our idealistic notions of the prewar period but it also reorients our understanding of the history that followed Policymakers of the 1920s latched onto the idea that global prosperity before World War I was the result of a system dominated by English liberalism Their attempt to reproduce this triumph helped bring about the global downturn the Great Depression and the collapse of the interwar world Jewish Studies at the Turn of the Twentieth Century Angel Sáenz-Badillos, Judit Targarona Borrás, 2024-01-22 In July of 1998 the European Association for Jewish Studies celebrated its Sixth Congress in Toledo with almost four hundred participants In these Proceedings have been collected 169 papers and communications read during the conference By and large they offer a broad realistic perspective on the advances achievements and anxieties of Judaic Studies at the turn of the 20th century on the eve of the new millennium They represent the point of view of the European scholars enriched with notable contributions by colleagues from other continents One volume ISBN 978 90 04 11554 5 includes papers dealing with Jewish studies on biblical rabbinical and medieval times as well as with some general subjects such as Jewish languages and bibliography A second volume ISBN 978 90 04 11558 3 is dedicated to the Judaism of modern times from the Renaissance to our days
