Anatomy of the Skin

Introduction: The dermis (dermis) is your integumentary system's 2nd layer after the epidermis. It is a thick, pinkish layer that contains many blood vessels, nerves, and hair follicles. It is the layer that gives your skin its color and texture. The dermis is made of two layers: the epidermis and the dermis. The epidermis is the outer layer of the skin, and the dermis is the layer below it. The dermis is made of connective tissue that is rich in collagen and elastin fibers. The dermis contains the hair follicles, glands, and blood vessels that give your skin its color and texture. The dermis is also the layer that contains the nerve endings that allow you to feel touch, pain, and temperature. The dermis is also the layer that contains the sweat glands that help to regulate your body temperature. The dermis is a complex and important part of your body's defense system.
