Meadows, Jiun-Chuan Lin,2016-06-17 This book deals with the relationship between geomorphology and society This topic has had rather scant treatment in the literature except to some extent under the label applied geomorphology In this text the authors aim to bring together conceptual issues and case studies of how geomorphology influences society and indeed how society is in turn influenced by geomorphology In an age in which the influence of human activities on global environments has become so paramount that it is increasingly common to refer to it geologically as the anthropocene the book aims to reflect on the geomorphological significance of widespread and diverse forms of human impact in a range of environmental settings Sedimentology of Paralic Reservoirs G.J. Therapy Maxine Ficksman, Jane Utley Adelizzi, 2013-05-13 The Clinical Practice of Educational Therapy is the first book to provide a comprehensive review of the interdisciplinary profession and practice of educational therapy as it exists today. It describes the scope and practice of educational therapy from its European roots to its growing presence in the United States and provides case studies to illustrate the work of educational therapists. Key Features: Interdisciplinary Perspective: Other books focus on either educational or therapeutic interventions but rarely discuss the blend and synergy of disciplines that are the hallmark of the profession. Illustrative Cases: The text draws heavily on case studies as a means of understanding the practice of educational therapy, especially the relationship between therapist and client. Expertise: Chapter authors are either experienced educational therapists or allied professionals who have made scholarly contributions to the profession, such as Dorothy Ungerleider, Patricia Waters, Roslyn Arnold, and George McCloskey. In addition to educational therapy students and practitioners, this book is appropriate for those working in related fields including special education, school psychology, school counseling, and social work in educational settings.
