

B. Position of center and right oil seals. When assembling the engine, fix the oil seals to the right positions respectively by using the center and right crankshaft oil seal positioning tools to prevent deformity or warpage of the oil seals.

7-8-5 Servicing

Oil in the gear box lubricates and cools the transmission, clutch and crankshaft right bearing. High-grade oil with excellent lubrication efficiency should be used, and the proper viscosity must be chosen. When too light oil is used, the clutch becomes easy to disengage but gear noise increases and lubrication becomes incomplete. When too heavy oil is used, gear noise decreases but the clutch drags in cold weather. Use high quality SAE 20W/40 multigrade gear oil. Oil deteriorates and its lubricating performance decreases if it is used for a long time, so change oil after the first 1,000 km (750 mi) and every 3,000 km (2,000 mi) after the first oil change.

To drain the used oil, remove the two oil drain plugs on the bottom of the engine. To expedite the job, drain the oil while the engine is warm and oil viscosity is low. To fill the gear-box with oil, remove the filler plug and oil level screw. Pour oil through the oil filler hole until oil flows from the oil level screw hole.
