Operating a Recycling Program Kevin Mulligan, Jerry Powell, 1979 Information Technology for Knowledge Management Uwe M. Borghoff, 1998-03-18 The value of an organization is given not just by its tangible assets but also by the knowledge embodied in its employees and in its internal and external structures While explicit knowledge can be shared as information and is easy to handle this tacit knowledge has been neglected by effectiveness oriented management techniques but is crucial for both the operational efficiency and the core competencies of an organization This book provides a survey of the use of information technology for knowledge management and its chapters present specific research on how technologies such as computer supported cooperative work CSCW workflow and groupware can support the creation and sharing of knowledge in organizations Military Review ,1996 Professional Journal of the United States Army ,1997

Hearings United States. Congress Senate, 1965 Assessment of Library Collections in a Consortial Environment George Lupone, 2013-09-13 The consortial environment provides librarians with new ways to manage collections at their home institutions Academic libraries in Ohio have been participating in OhioLINK since 1988 and the consortium has had an effect on shaping local collections for more than one decade While each institution pursues its own collection management strategy the shared resources and delivery system provided through OhioLINK influence local collections profoundly What has been the effect This work is a collection of articles assessing local collections within a consortial environment The authors assess collections from their own vantage points considering such diverse factors as cost regional depositories book reviews and faculty input The influence of consortial ties in shaping local collections is a common thread throughout the work This book was published as a special issue of Collection Management Register of Debates in Congress John Hohnes, 1833
