Expository Writing in Political Science Diane E. Schmidt, 1993 Genre of Autobiography in Victorian Literature Clinton Machann, 2025-10-01 Clinton Machann challenges recent popular approaches to the Victorian autobiography that treat the genre ahistorically or as a subgenre of fiction Machann argues instead for considering these autobiographies intertextually and as a historically defined genre that can profitably be studied as nonfiction and as a referential art The plots of Victorian autobiographies are highly variable in terms of developing motifs and tropes Autobiographers undergo spiritual and mental crises live out Romantic and biblical myths follow historical and scientific paradigms and the dynamic patterns of their own ideas Nevertheless underlying this diversity are profound structural similarities in plots of self development and the implied relationships between self and public works and ideas In the course of discussing eleven Victorian autobiographies in chronological order Machann suggests many formal and conventional continuities among them The eleven autobiographies include those of John Stuart Mill Anthony Trollope John Ruskin and Charles Darwin among other luminaries of the Victorian era Juxtaposing well known works with less familiar ones Machann helps the reader to explore the boundaries of the genre appreciate stylistic variations and identify profound structural similarities all of which result from the larger Victorian culture This book will be of interest to students of the Victorian era as well as scholars of life writing and historical constructions of self A life of an ordinary Indian - An exercise in self-importance Anil K Rajvanshi, This is an autobiography of Anil K Rajvanshi Dr Rajvanshi is a graduate of IIT Kanpur and a US trained engineer who left a lucrative career in US in early 1980s to come back and work in rural Maharashtra He runs a small NGO called Nimbkar Agricultural Research Institute which works in the areas of agriculture renewable energy animal husbandry and rural and sustainable development He believes that technologies for rural areas should be developed by the use of high technology Besides his technology work he also writes regularly on issues of spirituality and technology and believes that the mantra of India is
