This sample paper on Teenage Pregnancy Research Paper Outline offers a framework of relevant facts based on recent research in the field. Read the introductory part, body, and conclusion of the paper below.

By supporting the teaching of real life situations from sexual choices and education regarding pregnancy prevention, more teenagers will have access to appropriate information to make informed choices. III. A. Teenage pregnancy is a problem for all involved. It puts a great strain on not only the young mother, but also on her parents who, more often than not, end up with the new baby in their family home, often having to look after it while the baby's parents are at school if they go back or try to work to support the new child.

As well as the strain on basic tax payers who fund State Assistance funds that several young parents end up on. B. Teen pregnancies in today's society have become a growing issue and have been brought to the limelight with media attention so it is important to teach our kids the reality of their choices by providing education and real life information regarding their choices. Showing the teens what life is like after the baby is born in real life as opposed to what they imagine and see on TV would create an impact. C.

When we have more comprehensive education available to the teenagers, they will be able to see what consequences their choices would have on not only their futures but can see how their choices would impact all of those around them. With the right information given to them they will be able to make more informed decisions which will let them have better careers, and society will benefit as a whole. Body I. Teenage pregnancy is a problem for all involved. It puts a great strain on it while the baby's parents are at school if they go back or try to work to State Assistance funds that several young parents end up on.

Teenage Pregnancy Synonyms

A. Although rates here are declining, the U. S. Has the highest rates of teen pregnancy, birth, and abortion in the industrialized world. In fact, the U. S. Teen pregnancy and birth rates are nearly double Canada's, at least four times those of France and Germany, and more than eight times that of Japan. 5) 1. A new study by the Stomacher Institute states that a leading reproductive health research and advocacy group estimates that unintended pregnancies cost U. S. Taxpayers an estimated $11.1 billion dollars a year.

Nearly two-thirds of unintended pregnancies roughly a million births are publicly funded by Medicaid and other government programs. (6) B. Out of high school drop outs, pregnant teens are the most likely to do so. Because of this, young teen mothers are more likely to encounter financial struggles and economic insecurity as they try to raise their child. According to a recent study, many pregnant teens and teen mothers report they would have stayed in school if they had received greater support from
