Wild Sports in the Far West (Classic Reprint) Frederick Gerstaecker, 2017-11-19 Excerpt from Wild Sports in the Far West ON my return a short time since to my native land from the wilds of America it was not at first my intention to offer to the public the contents of the diary I had kept during my travels and written out in detail as an employment for my leisure hours for the exclusive use of my family in Germany Incited however by the interest awakened by the publication of a few extracts in one of our periodicals and yielding to the wishes expressed by various friends who had read the remainder I undertook to correct and revise my notes and to mould into a continuous narrative a diary which I had only kept when circumstances worthy of being chronicled arose for instance on the voyage out on my march through the United States during my sojourn among the

WILD SPORTS IN THE FAR WEST Friedrich 1816-1872 Gerstaecker, Harrison 1824-1906 Weir, 2016-08-28

Old South Frontier: Cotton Plantations and the Formation of Arkansas Society (c), In this deeply researched and well written study Donald P McNeilly examines how moderately wealthy planters and sons of planters immigrated into the virtually empty lands of Arkansas seeking their fortune and to establish themselves as the leaders of a new planter aristocracy west of the Mississippi River These men sometimes alone sometimes with family and usually with slaves sought the best land possible cleared it planted their crops and erected crude houses and other buildings Life was difficult for these would be leaders of society and their families and especially hard for the slaves who toiled to create fields in which they labored to produce a crop McNeilly argues that by the time of Arkansas's statehood in 1836 planters and large farmers had secured a hold over their frontier home and that between 1840 and the Civil War planters solidified their hold on politics economics and society in Arkansas The author takes a topical approach to the subject with chapters on migration slavery non planter whites politics and the secession crisis of 1860 1861 McNeilly offers a first rate analysis of the creation of a white cotton based society in Arkansas shedding light not only on the southern frontier but also on the established Old South before the Civil War
