Longo,Rebecca Clausen,Brett Clark,2015-06-25 Winner of the 2017 Paul Sweezy Marxist Sociology Book Award from the American Sociological Association Although humans have long depended on oceans and aquatic ecosystems for sustenance and trade only recently has human influence on these resources dramatically increased transforming and undermining oceanic environments throughout the world Marine ecosystems are in a crisis that is global in scope rapid in pace and colossal in scale In The Tragedy of the Commodity sociologists Stefano B Longo Rebecca Clausen and Brett Clark explore the role human influence plays in this crisis highlighting the social and economic forces that are at the heart of this looming ecological problem In a critique of the classic theory the tragedy of the commons by ecologist Garrett Hardin the authors move beyond simplistic explanations such as unrestrained self interest or population growth to argue that it is the commodification of aquatic resources that leads to the depletion of fisheries and the development of environmentally suspect means of aquaculture To illustrate this argument the book features two fascinating case studies the thousand year history of the bluefin tuna fishery in the Mediterranean and the massive Pacific salmon fishery Longo Clausen and Clark describe how new fishing technologies transformations in ships and storage capacities and the expansion of seafood markets combined to alter radically and permanently these crucial ecosystems In doing so the authors underscore how the particular organization of social production contributes to ecological degradation and an increase in the pressures placed upon the ocean The authors highlight the historical political economic and cultural forces that shape how we interact with the larger biophysical world A path breaking analysis of overfishing The Tragedy of the Commodity yields insight into issues such as deforestation biodiversity loss pollution and climate change Modeling Methods for Marine Science David M.
