Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the leader in the civil rights movement, once said, 'The function of education is to teach one to think intensively and to think critically. Intelligence plus character – that is the goal of true education.' True education is that which prepares you for life. It makes you learn, cultivate and develop the healthy values of life. The education must make you competent enough to cross the obstacles, hardships and hurdles of life. It is the means of developing oneself intellectually and socially. A college education is exceedingly important to me because life is full of opportunities and to make my future successful, I must take advantage of those opportunities. Education, to me, is not the traditional education in a four-wall classroom environment; it is education for life. My father was not able to attend a college or university because, in Sri Lanka, where he grew up in, even though your scores were good and promising higher education, there were not enough facilities to provide the education needed. My mother, on the other hand, was able to attend a university for two years and then she quit her education due to the political instability of the country and because she had more work experience in her field of choice. My sister is currently pursuing her degree in college and she has also been a reason as to why I want to further my education and take advantage of the opportunities waiting for me. Not only does my family want me to be successful when I grow up, but so do I. College is an opportunity where I get to go down the path to success and good fortune after I graduate high school. College is important to me because it opens new doors and roads that would not be easily accessible to me if I only had a high school education. In the world we live in, it is better to be fully equipped and prepared with a high standard of
