

Fast Food And Why It Should Be Banned

Foods are one of the most important factors in our lives. Everyone needs to eat to survive. Nowadays, everyone has a busier life than ever before. We do not have time to sit back, relax, and spend all day preparing food. But as our world develops, food industries are also developing. As we all know, we now have a new kind of food called "fast food". Fast food is tasty, cheap, and convenient. They are everywhere, always open, and we can get it by using the drive-thru. Most people, especially in the United States, love fast food. However, despite all the benefits, everyone also knows that fast food is bad for our health, causes obesity along with other diseases, and is addictive. This fast food will discuss how it is slowly killing everyone. Would it be acceptable to watch ourselves and our loved ones be killed by fast food?

Fast food is undeniably unhealthy and causes obesity. We may consider fast food junk food because it contains high amounts of calories and gives high energy but lacks micronutrients such as vitamins, minerals, amino acids, and fiber. These foods do not contain the nutrients that your body needs to stay healthy. Even so, people still love fast food. People of all ages can quickly become overweight or obese by eating fast food regularly. Some fast-food does indeed have vegetables in it, for example, a burger would have a piece of lettuce, a slice of tomato, a few pieces of onion, and about two tiny pieces of a pickle. Those vegetables are good for health but the problem here is in the quantity. There are large amounts of carbohydrates and fats in fast food, but there are very little vegetables. It is not nearly enough to sustain our bodies throughout the day. Many may not know how to cook effectively but even simple foods like scrambled eggs, sandwiches, and salads are better than having fries and burgers.
