Edwards, III,2012-03-25 How Obama overestimated the power of rhetoric and persuasion during his presidency When Barack Obama became president many Americans embraced him as a transformational leader who would fundamentally change the politics and policy of the country Yet two years into his administration the public resisted his calls for support and Congress was deadlocked over many of his major policy proposals How could this capable new president have difficulty attaining his goals Did he lack tactical skills In Overreach respected presidential scholar George Edwards argues that the problem was strategic not tactical He finds that in President Obama's first two years in office Obama governed on the premise that he could create opportunities for change by persuading the public and some congressional Republicans to support his major initiatives As a result he proposed a large expensive and polarizing agenda in the middle of a severe economic crisis The president's proposals alienated many Americans and led to a severe electoral defeat for the Democrats in the 2010 midterm elections undermining his ability to govern in the remainder of his term Edwards shows that the president's frustrations were predictable and the inevitable result of misunderstanding the nature of presidential power The author demonstrates that the essence of successful presidential leadership is recognizing and exploiting existing opportunities not in creating them through persuasion When Obama succeeded in passing important policies it was by mobilizing Democrats who were already predisposed to back him Thus to avoid overreaching presidents should be alert to the limitations of their power to persuade and rigorously assess the possibilities for obtaining public and congressional support in their environments who ignores you you're simply making your pain and unhappiness last longer than it should. You're deliberately hurting yourself because you think he'll change. Even though you know deep down that he's not the right man for you, you still hold out hope that things will change for the better and that one day he'll become the man you need him to be. You are afraid to walk away from this man because you don't know if you can survive without him. You don't want to let him go because you don't know what awaits you once you do. You are involved with a man who simply doesn't see your value. You give and give in this story and you get nothing in return. Maybe you don't want to lose him because he manipulated you into believing that you would never find someone else, maybe you are afraid of being alone because of the past you shared together or maybe you don't have the courage to escape the comfort zone that he represents. The point is the same: you are receiving less than you are giving and less than you deserve. Maybe you think you have enough energy to fight for his love. Maybe you think you are strong enough to change him. But your strength will weaken, your energy will run out, and your love will run out because it cannot survive without reciprocity.
