The Kitchen Ecosystem Eugenia Bone, 2014-09-30 Paradigm shifting The Kitchen Ecosystem will change how we think about food and cooking Designed to create and use ingredients that maximize flavor these 400 recipes are derived from 40 common ingredients from asparagus to fish to zucchini used at each stage of its life cycle fresh preserved and in a main dish Seasoned cooks know that the secret to great meals is this the more you cook the less you actually have to do to produce a delicious meal The trick is to approach cooking as a continuum where each meal draws on elements from a previous one and provides the building blocks for another That synchronicity is a kitchen ecosystem For the farmers market regular as well as a bulk shopper for everyday home cooks and aspirational ones a kitchen ecosystem starts with cooking the freshest in season ingredients available preserving some to use in future recipes and harnessing leftover components for other dishes In The Kitchen Ecosystem Eugenia Bone spins multiple dishes from single ingredients homemade ricotta stars in a pasta dish while the leftover whey is used to braise pork loin marinated peppers are tossed with shrimp one night and another evening chicken thighs and breast simmer in that leftover marinade The bones left from a roast chicken bear just enough stock to make stracciatella for two The small steps in creating supporting ingredients actually saves time when it comes to putting together dinner Delicious food is not only a matter exceptional recipes although there are an abundance of those here Rather it is a matter of approaching the kitchen as a system of connected foods The Kitchen Ecosystem changes the paradigm of how we cook and in doing so it may change everything about the way we eat today

The Ahern Home of Texarkana Doris Douglas Davis, 2024-09-02 Focused on an early twentieth century home in Texarkana Arkansas Doris Douglas Davis's The Ahern Home of Texarkana offers not only a discussion of the architecture of a Classical Revival dwelling but also provides a closely observed account of the material culture and social structures of a particular time and place in the American South Built in 1905 1906 by Patrick Ahern who immigrated to the United States from Dungarvan Ireland in 1881 the house at 403 Laurel Street was home to Ahern his wife Mary their six children and a variety of descendants for over a century before its acquisition by the Texarkana Museums System in 2011 Today the house listed on the National Register of Historic Places serves as a writing retreat music center and venue for historical presentations and educational activities

Based on archival materials interviews with members of the family and those who knew them and other research Davis's examination of the home and its inhabitants also includes a discussion of the complex relationship between persons of privilege such as the Aherns and the domestic servants predominantly African American whose often arduous work made possible the smooth functioning of the household within its social context in the Jim Crow South. Describing the fraught relationships in the South between Black domestic servants and their white employers Davis presents evidence of the inevitable despair wrought by inequality and the tremendous capacity of the human heart to love. This detailed tour of the home its construction and furnishings and the socio historical context of its day to day activities provides readers a window of understanding and appreciation that will inform students and scholars of material culture as well as those interested in historical preservation.
