

Cultural Autobiography Example

Start by describing the cultural aspects of your family background (attitudes, beliefs and values). My mom was adopted at the age of 9 but was given up at birth. So she grew up her first 9 years bouncing from foster home to group homes. And my dad is Algonquin Native American, but I did not meet him until I was 15 years old. With that being said, I don't really know my culture background and sure wasn't raised with one. I had a single mom that would not take welfare, instead she worked 2 or 3 jobs at a time to support my sister and I.

We did have great grandparents that adopted y mom, and without them my life would of been a lot more difficult growing up. They were both school teachers, and my mom was their only child. The most culture upbringing we had with them was probably church. My grandma was and to this day, a true Christian to the core. We grew up staying with my grandparents most of the time outside of school nights. I went to church every Sunday, and attended and helped with all holiday functions and anything else that we could. During the summer, we went to BBS for 3 weeks in Priest Lake, Idaho.

My Culture Essay

We prayed before every meal and followed the Christian calendar. Such as Palm Sunday, and so on. My fondest memories were Easter morning sunrise service in Spokane. Wed wake up at 3:30 AM, and be at this overlook point before sunrise. At that time the minister would have the special sermon. I know this isn't exactly what this assignment was about, but other then religion, I have no other culture upbringing. Include the significant moments or events in your life that have factored in your cultural development and discuss how these characteristics have influenced who and where you are today.

This is a hard assignment for me, due to the lack of family I have. It would be easier for me to include significant moments, where lacking any cultural upbringing influenced who I am today. Like I said before, my mom had me at 17, and she was a ward to the state of WA. Since she was not 18 when I was born, the social worker and the courts mandated that I was to be my mom's sister and put into foster care. My mom was turning 18, only 3 months after I was born. My mom fought the courts and the state of WA and was awarded emancipation and a baby daughter, me.

My dad had taken off early on in the pregnancy, so it was my mom and me. She still says that all she ever wanted mom met the man I grew up believing was my biological father. When I was 3, my mom had my little sister. This was when my first experience of culture, race or becoming aware that people aren't the same. I am medium skin tone, where my dad is dark skinned, native American. So of course my baby sister came into the world with tons of black hair and dark as could be. When my mom brought my sister home from the hospital, I started crying, saying, "Take her back! I don't want a black one! In my eyes, at the age of 4, I still remem
