Writing and Identity Roz Ivani?, 1998-03-15 Writing is not just about conveying content but also about the representation of self One of the reasons people find writing difficult is that they do not feel comfortable with the me they are portraying in their writing Academic writing in particular often poses a conflict of identity for students in higher education because the self which is inscribed in academic discourse feels alien to them The main claim of this book is that writing is an act of identity in which people align themselves with socio culturally shaped subject positions and thereby play their part in reproducing or challenging dominant practices and discourses and the values beliefs and interests which they embody The first part of the book reviews recent understandings of social identity of the discoursal construction of identity of literacy and identity and of issues of identity in research on academic writing The main part of the book is based on a collaborative research project about writing and identity with mature age students providing a case study of one writer s dilemmas over the presentation of self a discussion of the way in which writers life histories shape their presentation of self in writing an interview based study of issues of ownership and of accommodation and resistance to conventions for the presentation of self linguistic analysis of the ways in which multiple often contradictory interests values beliefs and practices are inscribed in discourse conventions which set up a range of possibilities for self hood for writers The book ends with implications of the study for research on writing and identity and for the learning and teaching of academic writing The book will be of interest to students and researchers in the fields of social identity literacy discourse analysis rhetoric and composition studies and to all those concerned to understand what is involved in academic writing in order to provide wider access to higher education

The Illusion of Conscious Will Daniel M. Wegner,2002 A novel contribution to the age old debate about free will versus determinism Do we consciously cause our actions or do they happen to us Philosophers psychologists neuroscientists theologians and lawyers have long debated the existence of free will versus determinism In this book Daniel Wegner offers a novel understanding of the issue Like actions he argues the feeling of conscious will is created by the mind and brain Yet if psychological and neural mechanisms are responsible for all human behavior how could we have conscious will The feeling of conscious will Wegner shows helps us to appreciate and remember our authorship of the things our minds and bodies do Yes we feel that we consciously will our actions Wegner says but at the same time our actions happen to us Although conscious will is an illusion it serves as a guide to understanding ourselves and to developing a sense of responsibility and morality

Approaching conscious will as a topic of psychological study Wegner examines the issue from a variety of angles He looks at illusions of the will those cases where people feel that they are willing an act that they are not doing or conversely are not willing an act that they in fact are doing He explores conscious will in hypnosis Ouija board spelling automatic writing and facilitated communication as well as in such phenomena as spirit possession dissociative identity disorder and trance channeling The result is a book that sidesteps endless debates to focus more fruitfully on the impact on our lives of the illusion of conscious will
