World Economic Outlook, April 2009 International Monetary Fund. Research Dept.,2009-04-22 This edition of the World Economic Outlook explores how a dramatic escalation of the financial crisis in September 2008 provoked an unprecedented contraction of activity and trade despite active policy responses It presents economic projections for 2009 and 2010 and also looks beyond the current crisis considering factors that will shape the landscape of the global economy over the medium term as businesses and households seek to repair the damage The analysis also outlines the difficult policy challenges presented by the overwhelming imperative to take all steps necessary to restore financial stability and revive the global economy and the longer run need for national actions to be mutually supporting The first of two analytical chapters What Kind of Economic Recovery explores the shape of the eventual recovery The second The Transmission of Financial Stress from Advanced to Emerging and Developing Economies focuses on the role of external financial linkages and financial stress in transmitting economic shocks World Economic Outlook, April 2010 International Monetary Fund. Research

Dept.,2010-04-21 The global economic recovery is progressing better than expected but the speed of recovery varies as outlined in the April 2010 World Economic Outlook Some countries notably in Asia are off to a strong start but growth in others is constrained by lasting damage to the financial sector and to household balance sheets The challenge for policymakers is to ensure a smooth transition of demand while maintaining supports that promote growth and employment There is also a need to contain and reduce public debt and repair and reform the financial sector This issue of the WEO also explores two other key challenges in the wake of the Great Recession how to spur job creation in the face of likely high and persistent unemployment in advanced economies and how countries that previously ran large current account surpluses or deficits can promote growth by rebalancing external and domestic demand World Economic Outlook, October 2022

International Monetary Fund,2022-10-11 Global economic activity is experiencing a broad based and sharper than expected slowdown with inflation higher than seen in several decades The cost of living crisis tightening financial conditions in most regions Russia s invasion of Ukraine and the lingering COVID 19 pandemic all weigh heavily on the outlook Global growth is forecast to slow from 6 0 percent in 2021 to 3 2 percent in 2022 and 2 7 percent in 2023 This is the weakest growth profile since 2001 except for the global financial crisis and the acute phase of the COVID 19 pandemic Global inflation is forecast to rise from 4 7 percent in 2021 to 8 8 percent in 2022 but to decline to 6 5 percent in 2023 and to 4 1 percent by 2024 Monetary policy should stay the course to restore price stability and fiscal policy should aim to alleviate the cost of living pressures while maintaining a sufficiently tight stance aligned with monetary policy Structural reforms can further support the fight against inflation by improving productivity and easing supply constraints while multilateral cooperation is necessary for fast tracking the green energy transition and preventing fragmentation

Regional Economic Outlook: Middle East and Central Asia, May 2023 International Monetary Fund. Middle East and Central Asia Dept.,2023-05-03 The economies of the Middle East and Central Asia proved resilient in 2022 despite a series of global shocks However this year and potentially next growth is expected to slow in the Middle East and North Africa as tight policies to fight inflation reduce vulnerabilities and rebuild buffers start to dent economic activity in many countries and agreed oil production cuts curb growth in oil exporters Inflation is projected to remain persistent The outlook for Caucasus and Central Asia countries depends heavily on external factors namely the impact of monetary tightening and growth in their main trading partners the pace of private transfers and inflows of migrants from Russia Uncertainty is high and risks to the baseline are tilted to the downside amid financial stability concerns particularly in advanced economies amid contagion fears Policy trade offs are even more complex and policymakers will need to calibrate the policy mix carefully to reduce core inflation without triggering financial stress and excessive tightening and continue to provide targeted fiscal support to vulnerable groups while preserving debt sustainability and financial stability Tight monetary and fiscal policies across the region amid tight global financial conditions call for accelerating structural reforms to bolster potential growth and enhance resilience

Exhausted Globalisation Matthias Diermeier, Henry Goecke, Michael Hüther, 2018-10-12 Today the concept of globalisation seems exhausted Protectionists are on the rise and the dynamic expansion of global trade has come to a halt With regards to migration Western politicians seem more inclined to rebuild fences than to open up borders especially after the refugee influx into Europe Comparing the current situation to the development of migration trade capital flow and technology spill over during the first globalisation 1870 1914 reveals that there are new reasons for the current struggles which include the lack of adequate institutions in developing and newly industrialised economies illusions about the inevitable automatism of capitalist efficiency in developed countries and conflict surrounding the meaning responsibilities and design of multilateral institutions This volume shows that there is an underestimated normative conflict between the transatlantic West and its ideas of 1789 revived in 1989 and the Chinese claim outlined by Deng Xiaoping in 1978 to shape the world economy on the basis of a newly developed meritocracy As highlighted here it is crucial to identify a normative value base for international interaction in order for all economies to participate inclusively in an economically and ecologically sustainable globalisation
