The Role Of Technology In Distance Education Routledge Revivals:

The Role of Technology in Distance Education (Routledge Revivals) Tony Bates, 2014-11-13 This book first published in 1984 provides a comprehensive review of the range of technology that was being used in distance education. Technological developments in word processing, video disc and viewdata, as well as computer based learning, had revolutionised the potential for distance education. These developments required the role of more conventional distance learning media such as broadcasting, tuition and text to be reassessed. This book, written by international experts in the field, explored the state of the art at the time and also provided their ideas on how future developments were likely to evolve. This book is ideal for those studying education and communications.

The Role of Technology in Distance Education A. W. Bates, 1984 Engaging Students in Socially Constructed Qualitative Research Pedagogies, 2022-05-20 This volume is an innovative practical contribution to the developing field of qualitative research pedagogy. It is also applicable more broadly to the active teaching in higher education. Based upon constructionist tenets, this book contains three parts that offer strategies and approaches to actively engage students in qualitative inquiry. Chapter authors with roots in six countries: United States, Lithuania, Canada, Israel, China, and Russia, offer practical and creative strategies and theoretical foundations for engaging students in active learning of research. The book will be of interest for instructors who wish to enhance their pedagogy and creativity in teaching and for students who will appreciate the inclusion of students' assignments and authentic scenarios through which instructors support students in student learning and doing of qualitative research.

Technology as Cultural Mediator Maria Beatrice Ligorio, 2025-08-26 This volume explores the relationship between humans and technology across a variety of contexts with particular attention to how technology mediates interactions between individuals. It considers a wide range of settings including education and training, professional and entertainment environments, as well as social, artistic, and economic domains. Drawing on diverse theoretical frameworks, the volume presents research conducted in several countries. Key themes addressed here include edutainment and the future of learning, immersive experiences and their influence on human engagement with art and cultural heritage, digital and AI mediated platforms, and the evolving dynamics of human-human and human-machine interaction, including human-robot interaction. The volume opens with a historical and cultural overview of the human-technology relationship, and each chapter presents original empirical data alongside a review of relevant research and developments within its specific field. This structure enables readers to gain both a historical perspective and insights into emerging trends. A unifying thread throughout the volume is the focus on the cultural dimension of technology contributing to the discussion about whether technology creates new culture or the current culture creates technology. It also discusses associated social and digital policies and potential future directions technology may take. It provides critical reflections on a rapidly evolving field of study. The volume will be of interest to a broad audience of scholars and researchers engaged in the study of human-technology interaction and the development of related policies.
