The Colonization of Literacy Education Julie L. Pennington,2004 Literacy and justice for all What happens when teachers are faced with educational policies ostensibly focused on ensuring that all children will be reading by third grade This book focuses on how eight educators in one Texas elementary school navigated the policies of the Texas Reading Initiative a precursor to the No Child Left Behind Act Exploring how an educational policy that supported a monolithic simply defined view of literacy education actually decreased expectations for all students teachers share their views and provide a basis for understanding how leaving no child behind has the potential to lower the bar for many children The Colonization of Literacy Education reveals how teachers instructional practices were subject to educational policy constructions of the literacy capabilities of children of color

Karoly, Gail L. Zellman, Megan K. Beckett, 2014-04-22 The landscape of early learning and out of school time programs in the City of Santa Monica is complex with numerous providers and funding streams This complexity reflects its evolution in response to changes in federal state and local priorities and initiatives Future shifts in funding levels program auspices and other features are likely In July 2012 the City of Santa Monica Human Services Division and the Santa Monica Malibu Unified School District contracted with the RAND Corporation to conduct an assessment of child care programs in Santa Monica. The study was motivated in part by the perception of some stakeholders that the system of care had become fragmented and complex. Additional motivations were the uncertainty of resource streams stemming from recent and anticipated state and federal budget cuts and a desire to ensure youth well-being in the community. The project sought to assess how well Santa Monica's child care programs meet the needs of families including child care and early education programs serving children from birth to kindergarten entry as well as care for school-aged children focusing on kindergarten through eighth grade in the hours before and after school and in the summer. Overall recommendations for improvement focused on advancing access, quality, service delivery, and financial sustainability.

Documentation and Reimbursement for Speech-Language Pathologists Nancy Swigert, 2024-06-01. Although it is the least noticed by patients, effective documentation is one of the most critical skills that speech language pathologists must learn. With that in mind, Documentation and Reimbursement for Speech Language Pathologists: Principles and Practice provides a comprehensive guide to documentation, coding, and reimbursement across all work settings. The text begins with section 1 covering the importance of documentation and the basic rules, both ethical and legal, followed by an exploration of the various documentation forms and formats. Also included are tips on how to use electronic health records as well as different coding systems for diagnosis and for procedures, with an emphasis on the link between coding, reimbursement, and the documentation to support reimbursement. Section 2 explains the importance of focusing on function in patient-centered care with the ICF as the conceptual model, then goes on to cover each of the types of services speech language pathologists provide: evaluation, treatment planning, therapy, and discharge planning. Multiple examples of forms and formats are given for each. In section 3, Nancy Swigert and her expert team of contributors dedicate each chapter to a work setting in which speech language pathologists might work, whether adult or pediatric, because each setting has its own set of documentation and reimbursement challenges. And since client documentation is not the only kind of writing done by speech language pathologists, a separate chapter on other professional writing includes information on how to write correspondence, avoid common mistakes, and even prepare effective PowerPoint presentations. Each chapter in Documentation and Reimbursement for Speech Language Pathologists: Principles and Practice contains activities to apply information learned in that chapter as well as review questions for students to test their knowledge. Customizable samples of many types of forms and reports are also available. Included with the text are online supplemental materials for faculty use in the classroom. Documentation and Reimbursement for Speech Language Pathologists: Principles and Practice is the perfect text for speech language pathology students to learn these vital skills, but it will also provide clinical supervisors, new clinicians, and speech language pathologists starting a private practice or managing a department with essential information about documentation, coding, and reimbursement.
