

Questions for Critical Thinking:

1. Why do you think Ariel Diaz and his cofounders didn't realize that they were starting a business that they weren't really passionate about? Should that have been a warning sign to them? Describe what you believe are the keys to ensuring that a person is truly passionate about a business idea before moving forward with the idea.

Answer:

Ariel Diaz and his cofounders didn't realize that they were starting a business that they weren't really passionate about because before starting a business it was important to know the customer interest and size which will positively influence people's lives.

Yes, they should have been warning sign to them. They should take care about customer interest and size.

I think that entrepreneur should have passion; they should not wear rose-colored glasses. It is important to understand its potential flaws and risks. A successful entrepreneurial organization should follow five primary reasons passion before moving forward with the idea.
