

Wedding Speech

1. Begin your speech by welcoming your guests, or by introducing subsequent speakers, if any.

*Hello, everyone. I thought it would be a good idea to start my speech early for fear that I would be inebriated later on. Dr Chan will be making a speech during the third course. He's my dearest friend and mentor – the Sugar Daddy of the bride. No lah, just kidding! He's like my god-father.

2. Jump straight to the purpose of your speech – to give thanks. Thank your family, in-laws, and wedding party and vendors.

To Dad, thank you for always working hard to provide for the family. I can honestly say that I've never lacked anything that I needed because of your hard work. Thank you for always being proud of my achievements although you seldom say it. So when you do say it, it is very special. Daddy, thank you.

Mummy, thank you for your wonderful cooking all these years. You are the best cook I know and your cooking was always the one thing I longed for during my NS days. Thank you for being patient with us when you were teaching us how to cook some of your awesome food, and for allowing Sara and I to mess up your kitchen during the times we decided to make our own meals.

To my new Dad, thank you for making me feel welcomed in your family. The lengths you would go for your family and the sacrifices you made for them has inspired me to endeavor to do likewise. Thank you for all the times you brought me out shoe shopping, and how you patiently waited for me to try on multiple pairs before I found a comfortable one for my practically flat feet. I appreciate that and you very much.

To my new Mum, thank you for showing me what family dedication looks like. The amount of home improvement ideas and projects that you have completed are proof of that. I appreciate every tip and advice ranging from cooking to medical issues that you've given me. Thank you.
