Time-Series Observations of Ocean Acidification: a Key Tool for Documenting Impacts on a Changing Planet Abed El Rahman Hassoun, Adrienne J. Sutton, Sam Dupont, Jose Martin Hernandez-Ayon, Xianghui Guo, 2025-04-15 Ocean acidification is a global phenomenon with local effects. Marine ecosystems are facing multiple stressors leading to significant changes. Time series observations are the basis to understand these changes and distinguishing between natural and anthropogenic variability of physical, chemical, and biological components of marine environments. Moreover, field monitoring is often neglected as a tool to document the responses of marine organisms and key habitats to ocean acidification. Time series observations of ocean acidification are thus critical to understanding the current threats that the ocean's ecosystems are witnessing and efficiently developing and implementing adaptation and mitigation solutions Time series dedicated to observing ocean acidification other stressors as well as biological parameters are the baseline for long term assessment of the ocean's health and for evaluating the efficiency of local and global actions toward achieving climate targets Therefore the goal of this Research Topic is to highlight the latest research efforts conducted to document ocean acidification patterns and trends and their consequences on marine life In this issue we will focus on new and old time series stations efforts to bridge physical chemical and biological observations and their application for modeling and future projections *Techniques of Water-resources Investigations of the United States Geological Survey: Chapt.
