Annual Report United States. Army. Signal Corps, 1871-1861-1891 include meteorological reports Extreme Weather Robert K. Doe, 2016-01-12 This book is about weather extremes in the United Kingdom. It presents fascinating and detailed insights into tornadoes, supercell and non-supercell tornadoes, historical and contemporary case studies, frequency and spatial distributions, and unique data on extreme events, thunderstorms, epic event analysis, and observing hailstorms, intensity distributions, and frequency of high magnitude events, lightning, lightning as a hazard, impacts and injuries, ball lightning, definitions, impacts, and case studies, flooding, historical and contemporary analysis, extreme rainfall, and flash flooding, snowfalls, heavy snowfall days and events. It also looks at researching weather extremes, provides guidance on performing post-storm site investigations, and details what is involved in severe weather forecasting. It is written by members, directors, and past and present Heads of the research group, the Tornado and Storm Research Organisation (TORRO). With fifteen chapters thematically arranged and a data appendix including a new tornado map of the U.K., this book presents a wealth of information on meteorological extremes. This volume is aimed primarily at researchers in the field of meteorology and climatology but will also be of interest to advanced undergraduate students taking relevant courses in this area.

Science in the Met Office Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee, 2012-02-21 The Met Office currently operates as a Trading Fund within the Department of Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS). The Committee welcomes the move to BIS, particularly given the potential for closer links with the research base and the opportunity to develop further its commercial activities. Core services, though, for the public service must be maintained. The Met Office generates a significant proportion of its revenues from Government contracts and Customer Service Agreements, in addition to its commercial services, and the Government should provide clearly defined funding commitments. This would allow the Met Office to take a longer term perspective on scientific and operational development. The Government has no plans to privatise the Met Office, which the Committee saw as putting at risk the strong partnerships built with international partners and the sharing of crucial meteorological data. Also, the Committee welcomes the Government's initiative of Public Data Corporation. Some concern, though, is expressed that scientific advances in weather forecasting and the associated public benefits, particularly in regard to severe weather warnings, are available but are being held back by insufficient supercomputing capacity. The Met Office should attempt to streamline the scrutiny of science under one committee and develop a strong customer relationship with key government departments.
