

Experimental Procedure

1. Obtain 100 pennies and place the pennies in the box so that all of the pennies are face-down. When the penny is face-down, consider the penny radioactive and undecayed.
2. Close the box and shake the box up and down vigorously for 10 seconds. Use a stop watch to measure the time as accurately as possible. Record the amount of time in the Data table. Open the box and remove all pennies that are face-up. Take care not to disturb the other pennies. Any penny that is face-up will be considered to have undergone radioactive decay. Count the number of pennies that were face-up and removed from the box. Set these pennies aside. DO NOT put these pennies back in the box.
3. Close the box containing the remaining pennies and again vigorously shake the box up and down for 10 seconds. Record the time and open the box. Count and remove count all face-up pennies.
4. Repeat step 3 until there are no pennies left face-down. At this time, all of the pennies have undergone decay.
