In the upper left part of this report, scores are printed for the tests, totals, and, if available, the composite. General types of scores are reported, including the national percentile rank (NPT), which is the percent of students in this grade in the nation with a lower score on that test, total, or composite.

The graph of NPT to the right of the scores provides a visual display of the student's performance on each test relative to the other tests. The horizontal bands help to show that each score is affected by a certain amount of error. Depending on the area taken, the shaded region on the graph represents the width of the band for the Core Total, the Composite, or the Survey Total, the score that best describes the student's overall achievement across tests. Bands that lie completely outside the shaded region indicate scores that are probably higher or lower than the score. Bands for various test scores also can be compared with one another. Those that overlap each other represent test performances that are probably fairly similar. When two bands do not overlap, those scores indicate performances that are probably different.

The lower part of the report provides detailed information about skills in each test area. The number of items for each skill, the number attempted, the percent correct for the student, and the percent correct for students in this grade in the nation are reported. The percentile rank of the percent correct score for the student is also displayed as a horizontal bar. The varying lengths of these bars permit identification of the student's stronger and weaker areas of achievement.

Linking and Aligning Scores and Scales Neil J. Dorans, Mary Pommerich, Paul W. Holland, 2007-10-15 In their preface to the second edition of Test Equating Scaling and Linking Mike Kolen and Bob Brennan 2004 made the following observation Prior to 1980 the subject of equating was ignored by most people in the measurement community except for psychometricians who had responsibility for equating p vii The authors went on to say that considerably more attention is now paid to equating indeed to all forms of linkages between tests and that this increased attention can be attributed to several factors 1 An increase in the number and variety of testing programs that use multiple forms and the recognition among professionals that these multiple forms need to be linked 2 Test developers and publishers in response to critics often refer to the role of linking in reporting scores 3 The accountability movement and fairness issues related to assessment have become much more visible Those of us who work in this field know that ensuring comparability of scores is not an easy thing to do Nonetheless our customers the test takers and score users either assume that scores on different forms of an assessment can be used interchangeably or like the critics above ask us to justify our comparability assumptions And they are right to do this After all the test scores that we provide have an impact on decisions that affect people's choices and their future plans From an ethical point of view we are obligated to get it right Educational Assessment of Students Anthony J.
