Reading Across the Life Span Steven R. Yussen, M Cecil Smith, 2012-12-06 One of the liveliest areas of research in the social sciences is reading Scholarly activity is currently proceeding along a number of different disciplinary lines addressing a multitude of questions and issues about reading A short list of disciplines involved in the study of reading would include linguistics psychology education history and gerontology Among the important questions being addressed are some long standing concerns How are reading skills acquired What are the basic components of reading skill How do skilled readers differ from less skilled ones What are the best ways to approach instruction for different groups of readers young beginning readers poor readers with learning problems and teenage and adult illiterates How can reading skill best be measured what standardized instruments and observational techniques are most useful The large volume of textbooks and scholarly books that issue forth each year is clear evidence of the dynamic nature of the field The purpose of this volume is to survey some of the best work going on in the field today and reflect what we know about reading as it unfolds across the life span Reading is clearly an activity that spans each of our lives Yet most accounts of it focus on some narrow period of development and fail to consider the range of questions that serious scholarship needs to address for us to have a richer understanding of reading The book is divided into four parts

HC 203 - Child Sexual Exploitation and the Response to Localised Grooming: Follow-Up Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons.

Home Affairs Committee, 2014 This report is a follow up to the Committee's second report of session 2013-14 That report revealed results of an inquiry into children being treated in an appalling way not just by their abusers but because of catastrophic failures by the very agencies that society has appointed to protect them There is no mechanism at all to suspend or remove a Police and Crime Commissioner for behaviour which falls short of criminal The current report includes a draft Bill which suggests mechanisms for removing PCCs from their post It is vital that children's services are dramatically improved to prevent a similar situation from happening again It was shocking that evidence of child sexual exploitation in Rotherham was ignored by both Rotherham Council and South Yorkshire Police A number of individuals attempted to bring these crimes to light only to face obstacles from the Council and Police which in some cases questioned their credibility and the veracity of their claims If the Council and Police had taken these warnings seriously the abusers could have been brought to justice more quickly and some of the later victims could have been spared their ordeal The proliferation of revelations about files which can no longer be located gives rise to public suspicion of a deliberate cover up The only way to address these concerns is with a full transparent and urgent investigation
