Understanding the Human Factor of the Energy Transition: Mechanisms Underlying Energy-Relevant Decisions and Behaviors Tobias Brosch, David Sander, Martin K. Patel, 2016-06-27 An increasing number of countries are shifting toward sustainable energy economies emphasizing the use of renewable energy sources increases in energy efficiency and the abatement of greenhouse gas emissions The success of such an energy transition will depend not only on the development of new energy technologies but also on major changes in the patterns of individual energy related decisions and behaviors resulting in substantial reductions in energy demand Consequently the behavioral sciences can make important contributions to the energy transition by increasing our understanding of the multiple factors and mechanisms that underlie individual as well as group based decisions and behaviors in the energy domain and by creating a basis for systematic interventions that reduce energy usage Many different types of relevant behaviors and decisions need to be considered in this context including decisions to invest in energy efficient household equipment adjustments of energy critical habits related to heating eating or mode of transportation and participation in the political discourse related to questions of energy An integration of the expertise of the different disciplines of the behavioral sciences is thus needed to comprehensively investigate the impact of the different drivers and barriers that may determine energy related decisions and behaviors including economic factors such as price level social factors such as norms communication patterns and social learning processes and individual factors such as values attitudes beliefs heuristics affective biases and emotions The potential impact of these factors on the success of the energy transition is considerable for example a recent projection of the energy demand in Switzerland until 2050 has estimated the reduction potential related to psychological and sociological factors between 0% and 30% depending on which behavioral changes will be implemented in society Increased research efforts from the behavioral sciences are required to ensure that the full reduction potential can be achieved This Research Topic brings together contributions from different disciplines such as psychology affective science behavioral economics economics sociology consumer behavior business science sociology and political science that improve our understanding of the many factors underlying decision making and behavior in the energy domain and contribute to the development of targeted interventions that aim at reducing energy demand based on these factors

Conflict Propaganda in Syria Oliver Boyd-Barrett, 2021-12-28 This book investigates rival narratives about the conflict in Syria from 2011 onwards It examines the starkly different narratives about the Syrian conflict told by mainly Western mainstream and alternative media and contrasts these narratives with the equally polarized but more nuanced narratives of mainly Western scholars and long form journalists Differences of narrative concerning the conflict include what is deemed relevant context in trying to explain the war whether the war is best seen as a civil conflict or as a proxy war fought among external powers the degree of emphasis given to the alleged crimes of the Syrian regime as opposed to the alleged violence of Salafist militia the accuracy of the origin story of the conflict in Daraa the extent to which the initial protestors were secular campaigners calling for democracy or whether they were Muslim extremists seeking a sectarian society governed by sharia law Several case studies of propaganda institutions are examined here including the journalism of Marie Colvin the role of government funded NGOs the controversies surrounding each of three major instances of alleged regime use of chemical weapons and the politicization of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons OPCW This book will be of much interest to students of media and communication studies propaganda studies Middle Eastern politics and International Relations in general

Routledge Handbook of the Contemporary Philippines Mark Thompson, Eric Vincent Batalla, 2018-02-19 The Philippines is a fascinating example of a poor country democracy where issues of economic development and poverty political participation and stability as well as ethnicity and migration are crucial The Routledge Handbook of the Contemporary Philippines provides a comprehensive overview of the current political economic social and cultural issues of the country The Handbook is divided into the following four sections concentrating on a different aspect of the Philippines domestic politics foreign relations economics and social policy cultures and movements In terms of domestic politics chapters discuss clientelism bossism dynasties pork barrel and corruption as well as institutions the presidency congress the judiciary the civil service political parties and civilian military relations The Philippines is confronted with many overseas challenges with the foreign relations section focused on the country's relationship with China Japan and the USA as well as assessing the impact of the Filipino diaspora community around the world Regarding economics and social policy authors examine industrial policy capital flight microfinance technocracy economic nationalism poverty social welfare programs and livelihoods The final section on Philippine cultures and movements highlights issues of customs gender religion and nationalism while also examining various social and political forces the peasantry the middle class indigenous peoples NGOs the left trade unionism the women's movement and major insurgencies Written by leading experts in the field the Handbook provides students scholars and policymakers of Southeast Asia with an interdisciplinary resource on the evolving politics society and economics of the Philippines

Mountains: Physical, Human-Environmental, and Sociocultural Dynamics Mark A. Fonstad, 2018-12-07 Mountains have captured the interests and passions of people for thousands of years Today millions of people live within mountain regions and mountain regions are often areas of accelerated environmental change This edited volume highlights new understanding of mountain environments and mountain peoples around the world The understanding of mountain environments and peoples has been a focus of individual researchers for centuries more recently the interest in mountain regions among researchers has been growing rapidly The articles contained within are from a wide spectrum of researchers from different parts of the world who address physical political theoretical social empirical environmental methodological and economic issues focused on the geography of mountains and their inhabitants The articles in this special issue are organized into three themed sections with very loose boundaries between themes 1 physical dynamics of mountain environments 2 coupled human physical dynamics and 3 sociocultural dynamics in mountain regions This book was first published as a special issue of the Annals of the American Association of Geographers

Civic Engagement in Food System Governance Alan R. Hunt, 2015-10-05 The local food movement is one of the most active of current civil engagement social movements This work presents primary evidence from over 900 documents interviews and participant observations and provides the first descriptive history of local food movement national policy achievements in the US from 1976 to 2013 and in the UK from 1991 to 2013 together with reviews of both the American and British local food movements It provides a US UK comparative context significantly updating earlier comparisons of American British and European farm and rural policies The comparative perspective shows that over time more effective strategies for national policy change required social movement building strategies such as collaborative policy coalitions capacity building for smaller organizations and policy entrepreneurship for joining together separate rural farming food and health interests In contrast narrowly defined single issue campaigns often undermined long term policy change even if short term wins emerged By profiling interviews of American and English movement leaders policymakers and funders the book demonstrates that democratic participation in food policy is best supported when funders incentivize groups to work together and overcome their differences
