Poetic Justice The Justice Series Volume 1:

Poetic Justice Jill Frank, 2018-01-20 Plato set his dialogues in the fifth century BCE when written texts were disseminated primarily by performance and recitation. He wrote them in the fourth century when literacy was expanding. Jill Frank argues that there are unique insights to be gained from appreciating Plato's dialogues as written texts to be read and reread. At the center of these insights is the analogy in the dialogues between becoming literate and coming to know or understand something and two different ways of learning to read. One approach treats literacy as a top-down affair in which authoritative teachers lead students to true beliefs. Another recommended by Socrates in the Republic encourages trial and error and the formation of beliefs based on students' cognitive and sensory experiences. The first approach to learning to read aligns with philosophy as authoritative knowledge and politics as rule by philosopher-kings. Following the second approach, Poetic Justice argues that the Republic neither endorses nor enforces fixed hierarchies in knowledge and politics but offers instead an education in ethical and political self-governance, one that prompts citizens to challenge all claims to authority, including those of philosophy. Dissonance (if you are interested) Rosmarie Waldrop, 2005-08-21 Incisive essays on modern poetry and translation by a noted poet, translator, and critic. As an immigrant to the United States from Germany, Rosmarie Waldrop has wrestled with the problems of language posed by the discrepancies between her native and adopted tongues and the problems of translating from one to the other. Those discrepancies and disjunctions, instead of posing problems to be overcome, have become for Waldrop a generative force and the very foundation of her interests as a critic and poet. In this comprehensive collection of her essays, Waldrop addresses considerations central to her life's work: typical genres and ways of countering the conventions of genre; how concrete poets have made syntax spatial rather than grammatical; and the move away from metaphor in poetry toward contiguity and metonymy. Three essays on translation struggle with the sources and targets of translation, the degree of strangeness or foreignness a translator should allow into any English translation. Finally, other essays examine the two-way traffic between reading and writing and Waldrop's notion of reading as experience.

Richardson the Novelist Gerald Henry Levin, 1978 Postcolonial Justice Anke Bartels, Lars Eckstein, Nicole Waller, Dirk Wiemann, 2017-02-13 Postcolonial Justice addresses a major issue in current postcolonial theory and beyond, namely the question of how to reconcile an ethics grounded in the reciprocal acknowledgment of diversity and difference with the normative, if not universal, thrust that appears to energize any notion of justice. The concept of postcolonial justice shared by the essays in this volume carries an unwavering commitment to difference within and beyond Europe while equally rejecting radical cultural essentialisms which refuse to engage in utopian ideals of convivial exchange across a plurality of subject positions. Such utopian ideals can no longer claim universal validity as in the tradition of the European enlightenment; instead, they are bound to local frames of speaking from which they project the world. George Fox's 'Book of Miracles' George Fox, 2012-03-08 A fascinating insight into a period of religious revolution in Britain and into the development of a new faith.

Divine Covenants and Moral Order David VanDrunen, 2014-05-14 This book addresses the old question of natural law in its contemporary context David VanDrunen draws on both his Reformed theological heritage and the broader Christian natural law tradition to develop a constructive theology of natural law through a thorough study of Scripture The biblical covenants organize VanDrunen s study Part 1 addresses the covenant of creation and the covenant with Noah exploring how these covenants provide a foundation for understanding God s governance of the whole world under the natural law Part 2 treats the redemptive covenants that God established with Abraham Israel and the New Testament church and explores the obligations of God s people to natural law within these covenant relationships In the concluding chapter of Divine Covenants and Moral Order VanDrunen reflects on the need for a solid theology of natural law and the importance of natural law for the Christian s life in the public square 07 02

The Idea of Retribution in the Book of Ezekiel Ka Leung Wong, 2001-07-12 The objective of the book is to examine the idea of retribution in the Book of Ezekiel The book seeks to show that underlying Ezekiel are three principles of retribution covenant the disposal of impurity and poetic justice That is to say the consequence of an act is either governed by the terms of a covenant or seen as the disposal of impurity produced by the act or made to look like the act by incorporating some features of the act The present study shows that retribution can be juridical in nature as in the case of the covenant but it can also be non juridical as in the cases of disposal of impurity and poetic justice This study also provides an examination of these three important ideas seldom noted in detail in current literature on Ezekiel

The New American Studies John Carlos Rowe, 2002 A clarion call for a more theoretically and politically informed approach to American Studies John Carlos Rowe a leading American Studies scholar has examined his field of study and declared it not ready for the twenty first century In The New American Studies Rowe demands a reinvention of the discipline that includes a commitment to making it more theoretically informed and he draws on the work of cultural critics postmodernist theorists and scholars in ethnic gender gay and media studies Rowe asserts that with American Studies's strong history of social criticism and practical pedagogy it is an easy leap to the type of progressive commitments characteristic of these areas of scholarship The New American Studies is a compelling combination of theory and application synthesis and polemic Rowe traces the evolution of American Studies over the last quarter century and looks to the future placing the field in a postnationalist context that encompasses all of the Americas and the disparate cultural zones within He then demonstrates the kind of literary and cultural interpretation he calls for examining subjects ranging from Hawthorne's and James's responses to nineteenth century sexual mores to the ways television legitimated itself in its first few decades to the Eli n Gonz lez custody case

Poetic Justice R. J. Fontinel-Gibran, 2009-07 Poetic Justice is a compilation of many years of poetry writing that occurred at inspirational moments in the poet's lifetime It reflects on reality the absurd the ideal and capitalizes on an over all rhythm through rhyme and the explosive reiteration of iambic pentameter that is an original style the poet has developed as a signature kind of writing Perhaps out of the love of expressive overtures that are more memorable as the poet throws the book at the reader WHO escapes justice Where What Why Displayed in a tiny plethora of reason derived out of the madness in a troubled world slowly watching the old ways slipping away wondering if you want to be a part of it in the new age If you will be and if so what microcosm within the macrocosm will hold you captive Concomitantly supposes the ultimate question on existence should be asked or at least acknowledged Gladness considered as merely a by product if and only if it is incidental Here today gone tomorrow may not be far from the whole truth so an exact account of your experiences and visual acuity are of the utmost importance Without this exactitude perhaps just a farce would suffice and undeserving of one's attention or merit altogether In essence in a truly deadly serious world Poetic Justice approaches this predicament in life as the copacetic manner for one's own well being You could really get into a lot of trouble around here if you don't at least care about aspiring to a perfect World even if that isn't going to happen for some individuals Propitiate the ideal in all things A palette of self exploration

The Oxford Handbook of Social Justice in Music Education Cathy Benedict, Patrick Schmidt, Gary Spruce, Paul Woodford, 2015-11-27 Music education has historically had a tense relationship with social justice One the one hand educators concerned with music practices have long preoccupied themselves with ideas of open participation and the potentially transformative capacity that musical interaction fosters On the other hand they have often done so while promoting and privileging a particular set of musical practices traditions and forms of musical knowledge which has in turn alienated and even excluded many children from music education opportunities The Oxford Handbook of Social Justice in Music Education provides a comprehensive overview and scholarly analyses of the major themes and issues relating to social justice in musical and educational practice worldwide The first section of the handbook conceptualizes social justice while framing its pursuit within broader contexts and concerns Authors in the succeeding sections of the handbook fill out what social justice entails for music teaching and learning in the home school university and wider community as they grapple with cycles of injustice that might be perpetuated by music pedagogy The concluding section of the handbook offers specific practical examples of social justice in action through a variety of educational and social projects and pedagogical practices that will inspire and guide those wishing to confront and attempt to ameliorate musical or other inequity and injustice Consisting of 42 chapters by authors from across the globe the handbook will be of interest to anyone who wishes to better understand what social justice is and why its pursuit in and through music education matters

Epistemic Justice and Creative Agency Sarah

Colvin, Stephanie Galasso, 2022-09-12 Foundational theories of epistemic justice such as Miranda Fricker's have cited literary narratives to support their case But why have those narratives in particular provided the resource that was needed And is cultural production always supportive of epistemic justice This essay collection written by experts in literary philosophical and cultural studies working in conversation with each other across a range of global contexts expands the emerging field of epistemic injustice studies The essays analyze the complex relationship between narrative aesthetics and epistemic in justice referencing texts film and other forms of cultural production The authors present without seeking to synthesize perspectives on how justice and injustice are narratively and aesthetically produced This volume by no means wants to say the last word on epistemic justice and creative agency The intention is to open out a productive new field of study at a time when understanding the workings of injustice and possibilities for justice seems an ever more urgent project
