Gerard Carruthers, 2024 Robert Burns 1759-96 was a producer of lyrical verse satirical poetry in English and Scots a song writer and song collector a writer of bawdry journals commonplace books and correspondence Sculpting his own image his untutored rusticity was a sincere persona as much as it was not entirely accurate Burns was an antiquarian national patriot pioneer of what today we would call folk culture and a man of the Enlightenment and Romanticism This handbook considers Burns's reception in his own time and beyond extending to his iconic status as a world writer Scotland Murray Pittock, 2022-09-27 An engaging and authoritative history of Scotland's influence in the world and the world's on Scotland from the Thirty Years War to the present day Scotland is one of the oldest nations in the world yet by some it is hardly counted as a nation at all Neither a colony of England nor a fully equal partner in the British union Scotland has often been seen as simply a component part of British history But the story of Scotland is one of innovation exploration resistance and global consequence In this wide ranging deeply researched account Murray Pittock examines the place of Scotland in the world He explores Scotland and Empire the rise of nationalism and the pressures on the country from an increasingly monolithic understanding of Britishness From the Thirty Years War to Jacobite risings and today's ongoing independence debates Scotland and its diaspora have undergone profound changes This groundbreaking account reveals the diversity of Scotland's history and shows how after the country disappeared from the map as an independent state it continued to build a global brand Warrior Dreams David Johannes Hesse, Tom Devine, David McCrone, 2011 At the beginning of the twenty first century thousands of adult Europeans are playing Scotsmen They dress up in kilts and tartan parade in military style bagpipe bands toss tree trunks at Highland Games commemorate Scottish soldiers of the past and re-enact their vision of Scottish history at Celtic and medieval fairs Their largest festivals attract more than 25 000 people each year and their more elaborate clubs are recognised by Scottish Clan chiefs The Scots of Europe do not usually claim to be Scottish neither by birth descent or residence Their performances are Scottish masquerades and openly declared so Unlike their cousins in North America and Australasia the European impersonators only very rarely insist that their Scottish performances express their ethnic identity And yet the European masquerade is a quest for roots and ancestors too This study demonstrates that by playing Scotsmen the Scots of Europe attempt to reconnect with their Celtic Nordic or otherwise pre-modern heritage They feel that their own customs songs games and tribes were lost to the forces of modernisation but that some of it survived in the Scottish periphery They employ Scotland as a site of memory as ersatz history This thesis is a study of European nostalgia It examines the many men and women who attempt to rediscover their traditions and histories It is concerned with what Jay Winter calls the memory boom the growing public preoccupation with history and its remembrance It argues that Scotland or rather dreams of Scotland have a special resonance in the European memory boom This study touches upon the fields of public history memory and festive culture In order to understand how the past is remembered and re-imagined in Europe today the author left the archive and questioned the commemorators This study relies on original fieldwork
