result of the Edgeryders project an online dialogue platform run by the Council of Europe with a view to promoting discussion with young people on the challenges of their transition to working life Given that the imagination and the experiences of young citizens can only be understood in the context of horizontal relations learning through sharing and joint management in line with the networking approach which restores the significance of individual effort and provides innovative solutions a programme such as Edgeryders can provide a future oriented alternative In turn institutions must show creativity It is no longer a case of managing inertia but above all of creating a balance between what the public authorities can do and what they can facilitate By adopting a spirit of co operation the authorities can encourage the sharing of responsibilities ideas goods and values while opening up to mutual learning Nevertheless this type of interaction is only possible if two conditions are met Firstly institutions must show a clear desire to ensure unprecedented scope for dialogue with young people by ascribing a high value to the proposals that emerge from the contacts among and with young citizens Secondly young people s interest in public affairs must be maintained in the long term by shoring up the online exchange with concrete evidence of legitimacy This publication is intended to help meet these two conditions

Reflections on Technology in Germany around 1800 Jocelyn Holland,2025-06-19 What is technology When we grapple with this question we try to understand something fundamental about humanity given that technical objects and practices inform every aspect of our lives The focus in this study on late eighteenth and early nineteenth century Germany underscores a pivotal moment in technology s conceptual history and offers a fresh perspective The translations and interpretive essays in this volume show how those writers engaged with technology reflected on its history and innovations even as they engaged in more speculative thinking Their work definitive of a historical epoch can still speak to us today Software Defined Radio

Leung, Michael A. Shanblatt, 2012-12-06 Beginning in the mid 1980's VLSI technology had begun to advance in two directions Pushing the limit of integration ULSI Ultra Large Scale Integration represents the frontier of the semiconductor processing technology in the campaign to conquer the submicron realm The application of ULSI however is at present largely confined in the area of memory designs and as such its impact on traditional microprocessor based system design is modest If advancement in this direction is merely a natural extrapolation from the previous integration generations then the rise of ASIC Application Specific Integrated Circuit is an unequivocal signal that a directional change in the discipline of system design is in effect In contrast to ULSI ASIC employs only well proven technology and hence is usually at least one generation behind the most advanced processing technology In spite of this apparent disadvantage ASIC has become the mainstream of VLSI design and the technology base of numerous entrepreneurial opportunities ranging from PC clones to supercomputers Unlike ULSI whose complexity can be hidden inside a memory chip or a standard component and thus can be accommodated by traditional system design methods ASIC requires system designers to master a much larger body of knowledge spanning from processing technology and circuit techniques to architecture principles and algorithm characteristics Integrating knowledge in these various areas has become the precondition for integrating devices and functions into an ASIC chip in a market oriented environment But knowledge is of two kinds Combinatorial Scientific Computing Uwe Naumann, Olaf Schenk, 2012-01-25 Combinatorial Scientific Computing explores the latest research on creating algorithms and software tools to solve key combinatorial problems on large scale high performance computing architectures It includes contributions
